'Consumers hold key' to better times

Worst of recession lies ahead—Ford

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford's chief economic advisers said today recession and unemployment will worsen in the months ahead. They said "consumers hold the key" to freeing the nation from its economic doldrums.

Cites support

Ford willing to be flexible on tax package

ATLANTA (UPI) — President Ford today expressed a new willingness to accept congressional changes in his tax cut plan and reported that his economic-energy program has won some favorable support among leaders at home and abroad.

The President's remarks came at a breakfast meeting with Southern editors and broadcasters.

Ford, who came to Atlanta in an effort to win grass-roots support for his economic-energy proposals, said he had made "some headway" during a meeting Monday night with eight Southern governors. The governors including George C. Wallace of Alabama expressed cautious support for Ford's program.

He also said that his strategy for combating the world energy shortage and bringing down the high price of oil had drawn a generally favorable response from the leaders of some other Western industrial nations.

The leaders he specifically mentioned were West German Chancellor Helmut Schmidt, French President Valéry Giscard d'Estaing and British Prime Minister Harold Wilson.

Turning his attention to Congress, Ford said he could "go along" a measure approved Monday by the House Ways and Means Committee that would allow an $8.4 billion tax cut for low and middle income persons in 1975, including tax payments of up to $200 for the working poor.

The committee is working today on a second proposal that would provide for $6.9 billion or more in one-time tax rebates in 1974.

The House measure is "not too far from what we proposed," Ford said. But he added, "I certainly want to read the fine print."

The three-member Council of Economic Advisers predicted an upturn in economic activity later this year. But it said that for the next five months, the downhill slide into deepening recession "is likely to be severe."

In fact, the council said: "The momentum of the decline is so great that a quick turnaround and a strong recovery in economic activity are not yet assured."

This gloomy assessment of the nation's economic plight was part of the Economic Report of the President, an in-depth study prepared each year by the CEA and sent to Congress a day or two after the budget message.

In accompanying remarks, Ford said the United States was experiencing a "severe recession." He urged Congress to act quickly on his package of individual income tax cuts, business incentives and petroleum tax increases, as well as his $52 billion deficit budget for the coming fiscal year.

"The year 1975 must be the one in which we face our economic problems and start the course toward real solutions," the President said.

The 359-page report contains a wealth of economic analysis but one question, particularly vexing to Ford's advisers, stands out:

Assuming Congress passes the administration's tax cut plan, or one similar to it, what will Americans do with their extra money?

Will they spend it on new cars, appliances and other goods, thus spurring manufacturing production and putting unemployed persons back on the job?

Or will a majority of persons stash their windfall in a savings account or use it to pay overdue bills?

"We cannot be certain how much of the tax cut will be saved rather than spent but past experience suggests that most of the tax cut will be spent and a large fraction of it this year" the report said. Cautious consumers may bank their added income initially but are likely to loosen their pocketbooks and start spending later on, the CEA suggested.

"Consumers hold the key to the strength of the economic recovery," the CEA added. "If they respond as expected to the stimulus of the tax cuts proposed by the administration for the spring and summer, real GNP (Gross National Product) should record a goodsized advance in the second half (July-December), but if not, the 1975 recovery could be a sluggish one."

The current CEA chairman, nominated by President Nixon and retained by Ford, is Alan Greenspan. The other members are William J. Fellner and Gary L. Stevers. Cautioning that its estimates are subject to "an unusually wide margin of error," the CEA made this forecast for 1975:

—Inflation will be worse than last year. Measured by the GNP deflator, the broadest gauge of price performance, prices will rise about 11 per cent compared to 10.2 per cent a year ago.

—Unemployment will soar to above 8 per cent by summer, the highest level since the 1930s. Last year the jobless rate averaged 5.6 per cent.

—Real GNP (the rate of economic growth minus the effects of inflation) will fall for the second straight year, off 3 per cent compared to a 2.2 per cent decline in 1974.

In signing the economic message Monday, President Ford said that while the short term estimates are not bright, he sees improvement in the long run. He said production should increase between mid-1975 and the end of 1976, providing jobs for some 2 million workers "so that unemployment—though still high—will be going down."

He said the inflation rate of 9 per cent between December 1974 and December 1975 should drop to a little above 7 per cent during 1976.

"While these projected figures present no rosy picture," Ford said, "they forecast the real improvement we expect in the coming months."

Local woman is killed in two-car collision; other driver arrested

A young Pomona woman was killed Monday in a two-car collision which resulted in the arrest of the other driver, a 41-year-old engineer.

The victim, Karen Sue Stewart, 23, 2490 Chanslor St., was killed outright when she was knocked through the window on the passenger side of her small sedan.

Pomona police said her face struck the base of a street light standard and her car ran over her as it spun in a complete circle after the collision. Her auto was a total wreck.

The other driver, Barend Mons, 1652 Bridgeport Ave., Claremont, sustained minor facial cuts and bruised ribs. He was treated later at Pomona Valley Community Hospital.

The accident, the first fatal traffic collision on Pomona city streets this year, occurred at 4:30 p.m. at San Antonio and La Verne avenues. Miss Stewart was northbound on San Antonio Avenue and Mons, a General Dynamics Pomona employee, was eastbound in La Verne Avenue.

Police reported that witnesses said Mons was traveling at high speed and failed to stop for a stop sign before entering the intersection. They said Miss Stewart had stopped at the stop sign for northbound traffic and was beginning a right turn when her car was struck almost broadside. After the collision, Mons' auto jumped a curb and came to a halt in a field 120 feet from the point where the cars came together.

Mons, who was arrested on suspicion of involuntary manslaughter, was released Monday evening on bail.

Miss Stewart was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry G. Stewart Sr. of the Chanslor Street address. Her body was taken to Todd Memorial Chapel in Pomona.

Rain to leave, but another storm on way

The heaviest storm of the season, which has dumped up to two inches of rain on the valley since Sunday, is expected to move south tonight and fair weather is forecast for Wednesday.

But the weatherman says there is a possibility of some more rain Friday or Saturday from a storm that will cross Northern and Central California later in the week.

It was snowing at Mt. Baldy at noon, dropping enough precipitation to provide good skiing conditions there. The road was open to the Ice House, but chains were required beyond that point today.

The road to the ski lifts was expected to be opened Wednesday. A foot of snow was reported at Baldy Village and two feet was recorded on the ski slopes.

Light snow was falling this morning at the 4,000 to 5,000 elevations of the Angeles and San Bernardino national forests and motorists driving to those areas were required to use chains. But mountain roads were expected to be cleared by the morning.

Although there was no damage reported in the valley attributed to the storm, the rain flooded many intersections in the Los Angeles area. But there also was a rare treat. A huge rainbow lasting about an hour Monday afternoon provided valley residents with a colorful light show.

The new storm, drifting into California from the Pacific Ocean may miss the Southland altogether, according to the U.S. Weather Service. If it doesn't, it will probably bring some light intermittent rain to the valley.

Warmer temperatures were predicted for Wednesday and Thursday, with sunny skies. The mercury is expected to move from today's 57 to 63 Wednesday. The lows will hover around 40 degrees.

Strong earthquake reported in China

MOSCOW (UPI) — A strong earthquake hit China's Liaoting Peninsula today, the Tass news agency said. It reported Vladivostok meteorologists recorded the quake at 8 to 9 points on a 12-point scale. The Uppsala, Sweden Seismological Institute reported the earthquake was 7.5 on the open-ended Richter scale and said it was "quite strong." The institute said, "So far we have not received any report from other measuring stations on the quake that came through clearly."

The Liaoting Peninsula is the lower tip of Manchuria and juts into the Yellow Sea between the China mainland and Korea. Its upper portions are separated from Korea by the Yalu River.

The main city on the peninsula is Anjing.

Tass said 6 point earth tremors were felt throughout a large part of the maritime territory. It reported the quake struck at 6:36 a.m. EST.

The earthquake also was recorded by the National earthquake service of the U.S. Geological Survey at Golden, Colo. It reported its magnitude at 7.4 on the Richter scale and placed it in northeast China within 150 miles of Peking.

Area cities get state tax shares

The State Controller's Office has released the January allocations of cigarettes and highway users' taxes, and in-line motor vehicle fees with valley cities to receive some $537,800.

Individual city allocations are: Cigarette tax—Claremont $7,228; La Verne $4,387; Pomona $36,255; San Dimas $4,620; Walnut $1,529; Montclair $12,478; Upland $12,126; Chino $7,933; and Ontario $22,173.

Highway users' tax—Claremont $18,127; La Verne $12,129; Pomona $51,744; San Dimas $12,500; Walnut $4,750; Montclair $14,846; Upland $24,571; Chino $15,611; and Ontario $12,236.

In-line motor vehicle fees—Claremont $19,291; La Verne $12,764; Pomona $67,191; San Dimas $13,167; Walnut $4,767; Montclair $17,416; Upland $29,142; Chino $13,338; and Ontario $50,441.

Can't wait on tax override vote

Pomona schools propose to cut personnel, drop team sports

Pomona school administrators, caught in a "can't-wait" situation with the district's proposed May 27 tax override, have proposed budget cuts totaling $1.8 million resulting in the dismissal of 110 employees and the elimination of all high school team sports.

The object of the recommendation, which also includes the closing of two small schools, the elimination of the optional sixth period at high schools and all field trips, is a balanced 1975-76 budget.

The school board will review the recommendations Feb. 11 at 7 p.m. in the board room of the Education Center.

Schools Supt. Robert E. Wentz said that the recommendations reflect suggestions made by employee groups, administrators and the school board.

Soaring inflation and the massive bite it takes from a district this size is the factor which makes it mandatory to either carve the budget or obtain new monies, Wentz explained.

The opportunity to obtain new monies presents itself on May 27, when the district once again will go back to the voters and ask for an increase in its general purpose tax rate. The amount to be requested has not yet been determined.

"We have a good chance of gaining that additional revenue when voters go to the polls May 27," said Wentz, "but, unfortunately, we can't wait until after the election to do the planning."

Administrators and teachers under contract must be notified by this March, if there is any reason to believe they may not be rehired for the coming school year."

Wentz said that if the board accepts the cutback recommendations, the following steps will be taken:

(Chaffey and Walnut school boards also were faced with budget-cutting problems Monday night. See stories on Page 13.)

—Yorba Elementary School will be converted to a daytime Adult Education Center. Yorba has an enrollment of 229 pupils who would be transferred to San Jose or Lincoln elementary schools.

—Allison Elementary School with an enrollment of 365 will be converted to a continuation high school and the Park Avenue Continuation High School will be closed.

—The Miller-Unruh reading program will be eliminated, this district-state financed program placed 15 remedial reading teachers in 15 elementary schools.

—All team sports at the high schools will be eliminated.

—The position of director of personnel will be eliminated.

—Positions of four elementary assistant principals and three junior high school assistant principals will be eliminated, as well as teaching assistants with stipends.

—Positions of six junior high teachers will be eliminated, and positions of six high school teachers, staffing the optional sixth-period class, will be eliminated.

—Budgeted field trips, the recreation program subsidy and pay for school board members will be discontinued. (The latter, by board action, already has been eliminated.)

—Positions of chairman of psychological services, health services and speech services, pupil personnel clerk-typist, two nurses, two psychologists, one speech specialist and several health clerks will be eliminated.

—Each of the three high schools will lose one top-level administrator, either the dean of students, a counselor or the assistant principal.

—The position of buyer-warehouseman will be eliminated.

Building may be up by June

La Verne moves quickly on low fire station bid

The La Verne City Council received an unexpectedly low bid of $143,000 Monday night for the construction of a fire station in La Verne Heights and immediately awarded the contract for the work to the Martin J. Jaska Construction Co. of Pomona.

The bid was more than $50,000 lower than the estimate of Cashion-Horie, the city's architects.

The move assured residents of North La Verne that they will get their station before the end of June, despite the objections of Councilmen Frank Johnson, who strongly urged a two-to-three-year delay.

Johnson cautioned the council of difficult financial times ahead, and urged his colleagues to continue to contract with the Los Angeles County Fire Protection District for services to the north side for the foreseeable future rather than make a heavy commitment right now.

But he was outvoted 4-1 by the rest of the council which felt that the city had given a commitment to the residents to go ahead with the project as soon as possible.

Consequently, the council not only awarded the contract, but also approved training four firemen to man the station, at the cost of more than $21,000.

"We're going ahead with this," Mayor Mike Morales declared. "But I want the residents to know that when budget time comes around we're going to make a lot of cuts. I don't want to pay the wages for the firemen out of either the revenue sharing funds or the general funds."

The money for the station is coming out of revenue sharing; the money for the training from the city's undistributed reserves.

But Councilman Harrison Sanborn said "we have built up our reserves very well over the past three or four years, and right now we are sitting well financially."

He pointed out that the city would have an undistributed reserve of $211,255, even after paying for the training program, and this was $14,000 more than the 15 per cent reserve recommended by "prudent financial methods."

But he also warned that cuts might have to be made at budget time to find the money to pay the additional firemen.

The low bids for construction were a factor in reducing the council's resistance.

Architect John T. Cashion reported that the city received a total of 20 bids, and that the four lowest offers were less than $2,000 apart.

Jaska was not the lowest bidder. An offer of $149,432 by Emory S. Jackson was permitted to be withdrawn after Jackson notified the council that clerical errors amounting to several thousand dollars had been made in his computation.

The fire station will be built at the corner of Wheeler Avenue and Ruggles Street. The contract calls for completion in 120 working days.

IN COURT PLEA

Egil Krogh Jr., former White House aide, pleaded not to be disbarred from legal practice in an appearance before the Washington State Supreme Court. He told the court Monday his confession to Watergate offenses was "a matter of conscience."

'EINSTEIN' AT PLANETARIUM — "Einstein" is the title for the Thursday evening shows at the Citrus College Planetarium in February.

There is no admission charge of the hour-long shows at 7 p.m. each Thursday. Families with children are especially welcomed.

Now in its 10th year, the planetarium is used by both day and evening classes in astronomy and other sciences. The planetarium is open to visits by youth groups and students in valley schools.

Persons seeking additional information are invited to call Citrus College, (213) 335-0521 or (714) 599-5773.

MANAGEMENT COURSE — Citrus College will offer a new course in management skills, with emphasis in communication, leadership and decision making.

The three-unit course will be held on Mondays, from 4 to 7 p.m., during the spring semester, begins this week. It will be taught by Dr. Helen Diamond of the business administration faculty of Citrus College.

For further information on registration in the class, persons may phone Citrus College Extended Day Division, (214) 335-0521, ext. 217.

LABOR CHIEF TO SPEAK — Sigmond Arywitz, executive secretary and treasurer of the Los Angeles Federation of Labor, will discuss "Jobs and the Economy in 1975" at 7:30 tonight in La Feira Hall, La Verne College.

UNIVERSE THEORIES — Scientific theories of the origin of the solar system and the universe will be presented in Chaffey College's planetarium today and on Feb. 18.

The program, "How It All Began," will be presented at 7:15 both nights by Robert M. Lober.

Among the topics presented will be whether the nine planets of the solar system were formed from the cold gases or shaped by hot spin-offs from the sun.

Other shows planned this spring are "The Mysterious Planet X," from March 4 and 18; "Light Breaks All Records," April 8 and 22; and "Dr. Hubble's Special Galaxies," May 6 and 20.

The planetarium has a seating capacity of 76. Persons seeking reservations may call 957-1737 or 822-4194, extension 275.

COLLEGE CHILD CENTER — The public is invited to view the facilities of the newly established Child Development Center at Mt. San Antonio College this week.

Open house will be held for a week starting Thursday from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m.

The center is funded jointly by the college and the associated students in a move to give the children of MSAC students preschool training and education while their parents attend classes.

A double size mobile home will accommodate 35 children. The center is located behind the Sac Book Rack and is supervised by licensed personnel.

MISS L.V. TO SPEAK — The "Confessions of Miss La Verne" will be heard by the La Verne Rotary Club Thursday noon at Castaway Restaurant, Pomona.

The talk will be given by Carole Ann Young, Miss La Verne for the current year, and will describe ceremonies in which she has represented the city during the past year.

In representing La Verne at the Miss International contest in Mazatlan, Mexico, Miss Young won the Miss Friendship trophy.

COLLEGE TRUSTEE — Howard P. Marguleas, agricultural business executive of Bakersfield, has been elected a trustee of Claremont Men's College.

Marguleas has had extensive background experience in the marketing and management of agricultural products. He served four years as a member of the California State Board of Agriculture.

PITZER LECTURE — The third in a series of lectures on "This Lonely Planet: How Do You Live with Yourself?" sponsored by the Academy of Pitzer College will be at noon on Feb. 19 in the Founders Room, McConnell Center.

Speakers will be Constance W. Atwell, associate professor of psychology, and Ronald G. Rubin, assistant professor of philosophy.

For reservations to the luncheon and lecture interested persons should call Mary Ann Callan, 626-8511, ext. 3145 by Feb. 17.

School chief counters worries over traditional plan

Claremont High Principal Alex Hughes dispelled two myths about the traditional schedule at Claremont High Monday night as the Claremont Unified School District board reviewed a proposal recommending continuation of the modular, traditional and interdisciplinary scheduling options during the 1978 school year.

The board will be asked to approve the proposal at its Feb. 18 meeting.

Hughes cited a myth which he said is widespread that a student would be held back in his course selection if he chose to take the traditional six-period day.

The principal said that there has been a lack of information among parents and students about the option possibilities this year.

Hughes cited as a myth the belief that a student in the traditional schedule as a disciplinary measure.

Superintendent Richard Kirkendall also backed Hughes' contention about a lack of information among parents and students as to the scheduling options available.

Board member Robert Stafford asked that a report about the options from Dr. Margaret Hodder, assistant superintendent in instructional services, be made available to the public with the emphasis that the recommended proposal has not yet received the board's approval.

This year 1,388 students from all four grades opted to enroll in the modular schedule, while 456 are going to school on the traditional schedule of 50 minutes a period, and 163 are studying in the inter-disciplinary program.

Dr. Hodder said that not enough juniors and seniors signed up for the traditional option, new this year, to offer a viable program, so they were able to choose another option.

Speaking for the staff, Dr. Hodder said that "we are convinced that the three scheduling options again should be made available to all students. We agree that we should make a concerted effort at publicizing all options, especially to incoming students."

Dr. Hodder commented that all incoming ninth-graders would be especially encouraged to opt for the traditional program, at least for their first year.

However, the staff firmly believes that all students and their parents should have the options made available to them and be able to make a "family decision," Dr. Hodder commented.

Dr. Hodder said that she found that sufficient enrollments permitted the staff to have a good selection for those ninth and tenth-graders in the traditional program.

Hughes said the staff is "proud of what's happened to the options. It's not a whim."

Chino councilmen expected to select development plans

Construction of a storm drain, a new park and various public works improvements head the list of priorities being considered for the nearly $2 million Chino will receive in Federal Community Development Act funds.

Chino city councilmen are expected to decide at their meeting tonight what they will do with the $1,806,000 they are to receive over the next five years.

Prior to the meeting City Council members will have evaluated a proposal prepared by the city staff based on comments received from citizen groups, community organizations and individuals.

The proposed storm drain would be constructed along Chino Avenue between Sixth Street and Monte Vista Avenue at a cost of $215,000 to relieve flooding conditions. The project would be completed during the first year.

Acquiring and developing a park site on Monte Vista Avenue would take place over the five-year period at a cost of $335,000.

The public works improvements projects would include replacing substantial sewer lines, paving alleys, installing curbs, tie-in paving and street lighting. Combined cost of these projects would be $864,000, with various phases being completed over the five-year period.

The highest priority public works projects were budgeted for construction at the earliest possible time. However, staff members said it will be necessary to phase construction of certain improvements so that they may be installed as economically and efficiently as possible.

Thus, installation of sewer and water lines will come before paving of the alleys where the lines are placed.

Although the proposal is for the entire five years, only the first year's proposals are firm.

Police to auction unclaimed goods

Bicycles, tape decks, jewelry, film projectors and tools of all kinds will go on public auction Saturday when the Pomona Police Department liquidates a year's collection of unclaimed property.

The auction will be held at the Pomona maintenance yards at 636 W. Monterey Ave., beginning at 10 a.m. Items may be inspected Friday from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. and on Saturday from 8 to 10 a.m.

All merchandise will go to the highest bidder, with no minimum bid required. All money from the auction goes into the city's general fund.

Upland school survey starts

Volunteers will be knocking on doors in Upland from now until Feb. 14 to gather vital information to assist the Upland School District in school planning and management.

The data will be used by the school board in determining progress, building needs and attendance areas beginning in the 1975-76 school year.

The information to be gathered is statistical, and each person answering the questions is assured of complete confidentiality, according to Bill R. Plaster, superintendent. The information may not be used for any purpose of taxation, regulation or investigation.

Once the results from the census cards is checked, the original information with names and addresses will be destroyed by the computer center.

The board and school employees will receive a compilation which is a data print-out showing only the geographic areas of the community.

$500 given to Arthritis Telethon

Area residents boost study of rare illness

A donation of over $500 from valley residents was presented by George Mooers of Ontario in the name of his wife, Marcia, at the Arthritis Telethon Sunday afternoon.

Mrs. Mooers, 41, suffers from a rare collagen-connective tissue disease which, in its early stages, often masks as arthritis or gout. There is only a limited amount of knowledge about the disease and, at present, no cure for it.

In an attempt to stimulate research into the cause and cure of the collagen-connective tissue diseases, the couple launched an intensive campaign to raise funds for the telethon. They were supported by local businesses, friends and co-workers of Mooers at the Progress-Bulletin.

The Arthritis Foundation is the agency which funds research into the illness which struck Mrs. Mooers 30 months ago.

Nearly $300,000 was pledged during the 18-hour telethon which ended at 6 p.m. Sunday. Miss Wyman, campaign chairman for the Arthritis Foundation, was joined on the television program over Channel 5 by movie and television personalities, stars of the music world and civic and business leaders.

Brezhnev ill; reports confirmed by Gromyko

CAIRO (UPI) — Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko today confirmed that Communist party General Secretary Leonid Brezhnev is sick, witnesses said.

Newsmen who overheard a conversation between Gromyko and Egyptian President Anwar Sadat during a picture-taking session said Sadat asked Gromyko, "How is our friend Brezhnev? How is his health?"

"He is sick," Gromyko replied.

Gromyko's comment followed a report in a Beirut newspaper today that Brezhnev recently underwent surgery.

The newspaper, An Nahar, quoting information received in Cairo, said the Soviet leader's health was "somewhat critical." It did not elaborate.

Brezhnev, 68, postponed a scheduled visit to the Middle East last month. Diplomatic sources in Cairo at the time said the reason was ill-health, but it was never confirmed by Kremlin.

Then kills self

Besieged man slays hostage

OCEANSIDE, Calif. (UPI) — A young psychiatric patient shot one of his three hostages to death then committed suicide Monday following a three hour siege in a residential area, police said.

David Terrell, 20, an unemployed carpenter from Arkansas, was seen entering a neighbor's home, carrying a .22-caliber rifle, in the early afternoon.

Shortly afterward, several bullets were fired, one killing a dog, another shattering the windshield of an arriving police car.

Within an hour, police said, they had surrounded the home with two dozen officers with riot equipment. Police said they fired no shots.

"All the bullets fired during the three hours we were there came from inside that house," police Inspector Roy Smith said.

The hostages, Leland Phelps, 16, and Melissa Ryan, 5, and her sister, Monique, 4, were concealed inside the home out of sight of police.

The boy was eventually allowed to sit outside the residence with the sniper's rifle pointed at the back of his head.

Police said several shots were fired from within the house and then, suddenly, Phelps slumped over with a fatal shot lodged in his skull.

A moment later, Terrell fired again, this time taking his own life.

Both Ryan children escaped injury. Police were uncertain why the shooting began or what Terrell wanted.

Film shows several guns fired assassination shots

CHICAGO (UPI) — Robert Groden says more than one person was involved in the assassination of President John Kennedy, that Lee Harvey Oswald had nothing to do with it — and that he has the film to prove it.

Groden is a New York photographer and optical specialist. He showed the film Monday at a news conference called by political activist Dick Gregory, who said last week he had evidence indicating the Central Intelligence Agency was involved in the Kennedy assassination.

Groden said the film was partially to back up those allegations.

Groden said the film was a blown-up version of the Abraham Zapruder film, the only one of the actual shooting, and that it showed "as many as four, possibly five" persons were shooting at the president, and proves Oswald "had nothing to do with the assassination."

He said the film was the property of Time Inc. but refused to say how the film was obtained.

This was the same film the Warren Commission studied before concluding Oswald acted alone in the killing of Kennedy.

Kennedy was killed in a motorcade in Dallas, Texas, on Nov. 22, 1963. Oswald was arrested for the assassination and was himself killed in the Dallas police headquarters by a bystander, Jack Ruby.

The film, enlarged and shown in slow motion, showed Kennedy being hit in the head. Groden said the film shows the force of the bullet pushing Kennedy back and to his left, indicating he was shot from the front and not from the back as was originally thought.

The film also shows two men Groden said were shooting at Kennedy. One was behind a pedestal on a grassy knoll in front of the motorcade. The other is also in front of the motorcade, under a low tree, and his head is visible on the film.

Groden said he is carrying a rifle, but it is hard to distinguish the "rifle" from the tree branches. Both are blurred in the film.

Groden said at least six bullets were fired at Kennedy — not three as the Warren Commission had concluded.

The first shot missed the President and hit a street curb, he said, and was later removed by the FBI. He said the second shot was fired from behind and hit Kennedy in the back and the third shot hit then Gov. John Connally of Texas in the shoulder.

The fourth, shot from behind, he said, hit Kennedy in the head and then the fifth hit Kennedy in the front of the head and lifted him backwards.

"The shot from behind that hit him in the head and then the one from the front were fired in less than one-eighth of a second," Groden said.

He said a bullet fired from Oswald's supposed position in the window of the Texas Bank Depository would have hit Kennedy at a different angle than any of the wounds he received.

Gregory said the film was supposed to be a different angle than any limited to excerpts and still photographs that failed to show the important points of the film and its implications.

Gregory said he will meet with the Rockefeller commission presently investigating CIA activities, and more evidence will be released in the next three or four weeks on the assassination.

Sadat to turn down demands by Russ, Syria

United Press International

Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko met today with Egyptian President Anwar Sadat, and diplomatic sources in Cairo said Sadat would reject a Soviet-Syrian demand for immediate resumption of the Geneva Middle East peace conference.

With Gromyko reported trying to offset the forthcoming Middle East visit of Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger and win back lost Soviet influence, U.N. Secretary General Kurt Waldheim warned today in Brussels that a dangerous situation will arise in the Middle East in the spring this year.

"When the U.N. Force mandate expires in the spring, it will be a dangerous moment for the Middle East," Waldheim said. The U.N. peacekeeping mandate expires April 24 with Egypt and May 30 with Syria.

Sadat has stated repeatedly he prefers Kissinger's step-by-step peace approach, with Israel working out troop disengagement agreements one at a time with Egypt, Syria and Jordan. Israel and Egypt are expected to reach a second stage agreement during the Kissinger visit.

The Soviet-Syrian demand for resumption of the Geneva talks late this month or early in March — with full participation of the Palestine Liberation Organization — came in a joint communique issued following Gromyko's weekend talks with President Hafez Assad and other Syrian leaders.

The Cairo diplomatic sources said Egypt was not prepared to commit itself and tie Kissinger to a deadline as early as the first of March. Sadat said Sunday that Kissinger, who plans a Middle East tour next week, may come to the region again in March for the same purpose.

Man on freeway struck by auto

A Texas man was injured early today when struck by a car as he stood on the San Bernardino Freeway near Dudley Street in Pomona.

Brian Waechter, 18, of Marble Falls, Tex., was treated at Pomona Valley Community Hospital for a possible concussion and later transferred to the County-USC Medical Center.

He was standing on the roadway in an unlighted area when struck by a car driven by Baldemar Lara, 32, of Fresno, said highway patrolmen.

ANKARA (UPI) — Premier Sadi Irmak said today Turkey planned to stay in the military structure of NATO for the time being despite a U.S. congressional ban on further American military aid to Turkey.

$6,500 savings and loan heist

Two masked men armed with a sawed-off shotgun and a pistol walked into Pomona First Federal Savings and Loan Co. at 9634 Base Line Road in Alta Loma, ordering a teller to fill a paper sack with more than $6,500 in cash.

West End sheriff's deputies said this morning they had not yet captured the two robbers, who were both wearing nylon stocking masks at the time of the robbery Monday morning.

The bandits, according to deputies, walked into the savings and loan association three minutes after the doors were opened. One of the robbers told three of the employees to remain where they were while his pistol-wielding accomplice ordered teller Valerie Lynn Prather, 21, to fill a paper sack with money.

The shotgun wielder stood near the door threatening to shoot the other employees if they moved.

When the teller finished filling the sack with cash, the man with the han-gun grabbed it and slowly began backing away. The two men, still pointing the weapons at employees, backed out the door and dashed around to the back of the building.

Within a second of the robbers' exit several tellers and bank manager Delila M. Zimmerman pressed silent alarm buttons alerting the West End sheriff's sub-station.

One deputy in the area, Rubin Olivera, arrived at the savings office just one minute after the alarms were tripped, but did not see the bandits.

Deputies said the robbers were Caucasians. One was in his early 20s wearing gray pants, standing 5 feet 9, and weighing 170 pounds.

The other man was described as being in his early 20s, 6 feet tall, 175 pounds, with light brown hair, wearing a brown jacket.

In Pomona, a bandit who escaped after robbing a pizza parlor apparently was unharmed in the barrage fired at him by an off-duty reserve policeman, investigators said today.

The holdup at the Pizza Hut, 320 E. Foothill Blvd., was staged by a man whose description was similar to that of the man who robbed the nearby Straw Hat Pizza Palace last week at 1065 W. Foothill Blvd. in Claremont.

On Sunday night's holdup, the robber entered, opened his coat to show employee Anthony Barber, 17, a .45-caliber automatic pistol and demanded money. Barber put it in a paper sack and the man fled.

He was followed by a customer, La Verne Police reserve officer John Zsenyuk, who fired one shot at him as he ran to a waiting car. After the bandit got in, and was being driven away by another man, Zsenyuk fired four more shots from a 9 mm automatic pistol at the car.

Late Saturday night the White Oil Co. station at 1137 E. Mission Blvd., Pomona, was robbed by a gunman armed with a .38-caliber revolver.

Ralph M. Hubanks, 50, an employee, surrendered his money to a man who stuck a gun in his back while he was working in the lube room.

The robber was described as a Negro about 25, 6 feet tall wearing a mustache, black leather cap, black jacket and black trousers. The man fled on foot.

Ontario police this morning continued their search for a man who robbed the Holiday Inn at Vineyard Avenue and the San Bernardino Freeway early Monday morning and pistol whipped a clerk.

According to police, Chester Whiting was confronted by a man about 3 a.m. Monday who displayed a revolver under his coat. The robber ordered Whiting back, while he rifled the cash register and cash box. After the robber put the money in his jacket pocket, he took Whiting's wallet and pistol whipped him.

Whiting treated at Ontario Community Hospital and later released. Police said the robber is described as being a Negro in his 20s, 6 feet, 135 pounds, wearing a dark rain coat. Whiting said he believed the revolver used by the robber was a .44 magnum.

Also in Ontario, a man armed with a chrome plated handgun robbed Weaver's Market at 1050 N. Sultana Ave. of cash Monday afternoon and escaped in a dark maroon car.

Hubert M. Weaver, 54, and his wife, Ida, reported the robbery at 3:18 p.m. The Weavers said a man, described as a Negro, about 30, wearing a brown or gray stocking cap approached the counter and displayed a chrome plated handgun. The Weavers said the gunman took the cash from the register and fled.

The Weavers said they saw a maroon colored Ford Mustang leaving the area moments after the robber left.

Ontario service station attendant Johnny W. Ferguson, 35, working at the Arco Station at 2430 S. Euclid Ave. reported to police early this morning that a gunman robbed the station of $4 worth of gas and a small amount of cash about 2:30 a.m.

Upland police were investigating the reported rape of a 23-year-old Upland woman in her apartment Monday.

Winter's worst storm in north takes two lives

By United Press International

The worst Northern California storm of the winter, which already has caused two deaths, will continue at least through Wednesday, the National Weather Service predicts.

Heaviest hit by the storm, which started Friday, was the Sierra Nevada where 300-man crews battled to keep open the main east-west highways to Nevada despite as much as 60 inches of snow at places such as Norden near Donner Summit.

Vehicular traffic repeatedly was halted and the California Highway Patrol has been convoying large trucks through passes.

State highway crews blasted massive snow drifts at Echo Summit on Highway 50 to control avalanches.

At Truckee, the Nevada County sheriff's office reported the storm was hampering the search for the body of Evelyn Golding, 21, of San Rafael, a University of California at Davis student who died of exposure when trapped by the storm while skiing.

The other storm related death took the life of Claude Gould, 32, a Pacific Gas & Electric Co. lineman who fell from a pole while trying to repair a damaged power line.

Weekend skiers were stranded for hours in the storm and at one time the Nevada Highway Patrol reported about 300 cars stopped in the Mount Rose area. Most made their way to safety although roads remained hazardous.

Three injured in two area auto crashes

Three persons were injured in two separate accidents occurring within 30 minutes of each other at 1020 E. St. and at J Street and Euclid Avenue in Ontario Monday afternoon.

At 2:26 p.m. police reported that two girls were injured at 1020 E. D Street when their car crashed into the rear end of a parked car.

Constance Dawn Harris, 18, of Los Osos, Calif., driver of the car, and her passenger Jennie Rubidoux, 16, of 1449 E. D St. Ontario, were taken to Ontario Community Hospital for treatment of minor injuries and later released.

At 2:41 p.m. police and an ambulance were dispatched to J Street and Euclid Avenue where a 44-year-old Ontario woman was injured in a two-car broadside collision.

Minnie Jeffrey of 133 N. Vine Ave., Ontario, a passenger in a car driven by Sandra Faye Winn, 18, of 625 W. Vesta St., Ontario, this morning was listed in satisfactory condition at Ontario Community Hospital with injuries suffered in the accident.

Valley city must decide how to spend $154,000

The first of two hearings will be held tonight in La Verne on what to do with $154,000 which the city expects to get from the federal Housing and Community Development act over the next three years.

The hearing will be at 7:30 p.m. A second hearing has been set for the same hour next Wednesday. Both will be held at the City Council chambers by City Manager George Caswell.

The money must be used for either the acquisition of real estate for community betterment or acquisition or construction of public facilities such as senior centers, historic properties, malls, neighborhood centers, and recreation areas.

Before the federal money can be granted a community development program must be submitted. Priorities are given to programs which benefit low or medium income families or which help eliminate blight.

Caswell said he expects little more than planning funds for the first year. He said suggestions for the use of the money will be compiled and made part of the overall plan after the hearings are concluded.

Schools propose . . .

—The position of coordinator of elementary education will be eliminated.

—The position of chairman of the music department, plus four elementary music specialists and a typist-clerk, will be eliminated.

—Nine remedial reading teachers at the secondary level and two bilingual teachers and two bilingual aides will be terminated.

—Positions of two junior high school librarians will be cut. Junior high school opportunity classes will be dropped, eliminating six positions.

—Sabbatical leaves for teachers will be eliminated.

—Attendants for locker rooms will be eliminated, along with positions of three groundmen, seven custodians, three painters, three carpenters and two bus drivers.

—There will be a 10 per cent reduction in capital outlay, library books, visual aids and textbooks.

—Diamond Bar bus transportation will be eliminated.

—There will be a 50 per cent reduction in the amount of money paid for consultants.

In terms of people, Wentz explained, it works out that 35 classified employees would be dismissed, 34 certificated non-classroom personnel, 29 classroom teachers and 12 administrators.

"These cuts will not affect the pupil-teacher ratio formula in the schools, nor the normal allocation for regular teachers," said Wentz.

"All classroom reductions at the elementary level will come due to loss of enrollment, and at the secondary level the reductions are in non-regular classroom assignments."

'Oh, my God, it's her'—man kidnaped by Pat Hearst?

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — "There she was as big as day ... and as soon as I saw her, I said 'My God, it's her,'" said Edward Carr, an artist and singer who says he was kidnaped by Patricia Hearst last week.

Police and the FBI confirmed that Carr, 32, had reported being kidnaped by the fugitive heiress. The FBI said his story was regarded as "just one more sighting" of the thousands — mostly unfounded — of such reports in the years since she was abducted.

The FBI said there was no federal offense involved and it is up to local police to investigate. Despite Carr's story "there is nothing to lead us to believe that she is in Los Angeles," said Assistant FBI Director William B. Sullivan, head of the Los Angeles office.

Police said Carr was given a lie detector test but the results were "inconclusive."

Carr said that two black women and a white woman approached him as he got out of his car in the parking lot of a Hollywood discount store and commanded his car at gunpoint.

He said the white woman was called "Pat" by the others and was Miss Hearst. He said she wore hunting boots and a beret. "She had no makeup on. She was not disguised," he told television interviewers.

"There she was as big as day. Patty Hearst was standing there, and as soon as I saw her I said 'Oh My God, it's her,'" he said.

One of the black women held a pistol on him, he said.

He said they forced him to drive around the Hollywood area for 45 minutes, and that at one point, they stopped and Miss Hearst got out of the car and returned later.

In an interview with KPIX-TV of San Francisco, Carr said that Miss Hearst was carrying a package, but still had it with her when she returned remarking to the other women "He's not there." He did not mention the package episode in an interview with KACB-TV of Los Angeles.

The women got out of the car in front of Hollywood High School, he said, warning him "to keep my mouth shut." He reported the incident to police. In the televised interview he refused to allow his face to be shown on camera.

The area where Carr said he was kidnaped is the same neighborhood in central Hollywood which was the scene of the last confirmed report of Miss Hearst's whereabouts. Investigator have said they believe a businessman who said he was held briefly at gun point in his car by Miss Hearst and another SLA fugitive, Emily Harris, shortly after six other members of the SLA gang that kidnaped her perished in a fiery gunbattle with police last April.

Ethiopia fighting

Planes evacuating foreign nationals

ADDIS ABABA (UPI) — American and French planes today began evacuating foreign nationals from the beleaguered city of Asmara, caught up in the fourth day of battle between government troops and Eritreans seeking independence from Addis Ababa.

The U.S. State Department has reported 300 Americans in Asmara but it was not known immediately how many were evacuated today.

Most of the fighting centered around rebel positions 13 miles from the city and government troops in an all-out push to crush the 13-year-old Eritrean separatist movement pounded rebel positions around Asmara with artillery and rockets.

Sporadic gunfire rang out during the night in Asmara itself as intense fighting that has claimed an estimated 200 lives raged without letup.

The first planes of refugees arriving in Addis Ababa carried women and children. They were bundled off to the Hilton hotel in the Ethiopian capital where many got their first chance to clean up in several days.

Supplies of food, water and electricity in Asmara have been in short supply for several days. An explosion in an electricity plant blacked out a section of the city.

The evacuation followed another night of fighting in the city that has been cut off to all civilian road and air travel.

"I spent most of the night under cover in my home as bullets whistled around outside," a foreign national said.

A dusk-to-dawn curfew remained in effect. Residents reported food, water and electricity were running short.

Sonny suing Cher for $24 million

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (UPI) — First Cher sued Sonny for keeping her in slavery. Now Sonny is suing Cher and her boyfriend for conspiring to destroy his finances.

In the Bonos' latest legal hassle Monday, Sonny demanded $24 million from his estranged wife and recording executive David Geffen, charging they conspired to damage "existing contracts as well as the then-existing prospective economic opportunities" for the team of Sonny and Cher.

The couple lost their television show when the marriage broke up, although each has gone on as a single.

The political arena

Lloyd against special FBI, CIA panel

REP. JIM LLOYD, D-35th Dist., said he opposes legislation pending in Congress to establish special committees to investigate alleged abuses of power by the FBI and CIA. These agencies have come under attack for reportedly compiling files on thousands of Americans.

"We don't need special Congressional committees the Judiciary Committee has jurisdiction over the FBI and the Armed Services Committee is responsible for the CIA," he explained.

Lloyd, of West Covina, is a member of the Armed Service Committee but is not on the subcommittee conducting the CIA inquiry. He said he would attend any hearings so residents in his district would receive first-hand information.

"We must have properly operated law enforcement and intelligence gathering agencies but we must take care to insure that rights of American citizens are not abused."

Meanwhile Lloyd said he sold his public relations firm to his former campaign manager.

The firm, Lloyds Public Relations and Advertising, will maintain its offices at the Home Savings Building, 100 S. Vincent Ave., West Covina, announced Michael Stover, the new owner.

Stover, 28, had been employed by Cerrell Associates, Inc., a Los Angeles based public relations firm.

When elected to his federal office, Lloyd announced he would sell the firm to devote full time to his district.

ASSEMBLYMAN BILL McVITTIE, D-65th Dist., has been appointed to an Assembly work study group to review California milk pricing and pooling laws.

The group, consisting of four members of the Assembly's Agriculture Committee, will study legislation affecting milk producers, processors, distributors, wholesalers, retailers and consumers.

"I am deeply concerned over the situation that has developed over the past few years with respect to milk," said McVittie. "Milk is a vital nutritional component in the lives of many people and it is the only good commodity where the price is almost controlled by government."

3 hearings for Walnut planning unit

A proposed civic center overlay zone will be the subject of one of three public hearings Wednesday at a 7:30 p.m. meeting of the Walnut Planning Commission in the City Hall.

Environmental impact of the overlay zone also will be discussed.

Other public hearings will be held to:

—Consider a request from Joseph and Kristi Dunkerley for a conditional use permit for their restaurant at 19739 E. Valley Blvd. They want to offer entertainment at that location.

Rowland school parent session

A newly formed Parent-Community Education Committee, representing 10 of the 20 schools in the Rowland Unified School District, will meet today at 7:30 p.m. in the administrative center board room.

The meeting was called to inform parents about the district curriculum steering committee and how curriculum is developed, and to explore ways of improving communication between the parents and the schools.

DEBBIE WALLACE

New 'Our House' leader

Miss Debbie Wallace, 21, a La Verne College senior, has accepted the position of supervisor of the Our House juvenile diversion project in Claremont.

The project is aimed at diverting first-time and other juvenile offenders away from the juvenile court system and referring them to community organizations for help.

Our House, a crisis-intervention and counseling center operated by a non-profit group, handled the diversion project for Claremont students.

Miss Wallace said that 35 students are being counseled or have been referred to such agencies as Family Service or Planned Parenthood. Our House will receive funding through the Pomona Valley Juvenile Diversion Authority for up to 60 persons.

Miss Wallace noted that several youngsters are being aided by the Kappa Alpha Psi fraternity at Cal Poly Pomona which is taking them on trips and holding rap groups as a community project.

Working with Miss Wallace as coordinators are Betty Kurtzer, Ernie Sena, and Rickey Crawley.

Miss Wallace is a Garey High graduate, and is majoring in political science at La Verne College.

She has been working with students for four to five years, as a tutor at the Pomona Day School, as a nursery school teacher at the South Hills Neighborhood Service Center in Pomona, and now on the diversion project.

Free Income Tax Preparation.

This week, reserve your private appointment for early Spring preparation of 1974 tax returns.

Limited number of openings available at each Citizens office.

Last year over 12,000 Citizens customers saved many dollars by having their Federal and State individual income tax returns prepared without charge.

If you act this week, Citizens can give you these three important benefits:

First Benefit: Citizens can save you considerable money by arranging for you to have your California and Federal tax returns prepared at no cost. You'll receive a private appointment for your return to be analyzed and completely prepared by a trained tax preparer from the nationwide Mr. Tax organization, who will assist you in taking advantage of every possible legal deduction. All calculations are then double-checked by supervisors to insure your receiving maximum tax benefits.

Second Benefit: If you act this week, you'll not only assure yourself a precious appointment (we have only a limited number available... when they're filled, that's all there are)... you'll also be able to enjoy a host of other important money-saving Citizens services, including free safe deposit box, free checking account, free travel club membership, free travelers checks, free money orders, and more.

Third Benefit: If you act this week, you will not only secure a hard-to-get tax preparation appointment, you'll also have a selection of highly profitable savings plans from which to choose.

So do it now. Just a $5,000 minimum balance may qualify you for free income tax preparation. See our income tax brochure for complete qualifying requirements.

If you have an account you wish to transfer from another institution, we can handle all the details for you. If this account matures in the first quarter of 1975, we can arrange your tax appointment now and transfer your account upon maturity with no loss of interest.

If you are already a Citizens saver, please check with your local office for qualification requirements. We urge you to act now. Visit us right away.

FREE! This exclusive "Parks of California" 1975 CALENDAR. Remarkable photographs of California wonders presented in this handsome date calendar format. Free... while quantities last... at your nearest Citizens office.

GM's $200 OR $500 REBATE

Just buy or lease* any new 1975 GM car listed here from a General Motors Dealer and take delivery through February 28, 1975, and you'll get a check for either $200 or $500, depending on the car you select.

And this offer isn't limited to just a few models either.

It applies to all 41 cars listed here, regardless of engine or equipment.

So get in on GM's big small-car rebate offer and save $200 or $500 on a car that can help save you money on gas and operating costs, too. *Consult your GM Dealer for full lease details.

GOOD GAS MILEAGE

One of the best things about owning a small GM car is the good gas mileage you can expect. For example, our Chevrolet Vega and Pontiac Astre with available 140-cu.-in. 2-bbl. engines delivered the best gas mileage in the EPA highway tests of any 4-cylinder cars built in the United States—28 mpg. And in the city tests, the Vega got 19 mpg and the Astre 18 mpg, which are also very impressive figures.

Our new Chevy Monza 2+2, Olds Starfire and Buick Skylark did extremely well in the EPA tests, too. The Monza 2+2 with standard 140-cu.-in. 4-cylinder engine got 28 in the highway test, 18 in the city test. And both the Olds Starfire and Buick Skylark with standard 231-cu.-in. V-6 engines delivered 23 mpg in the highway test, 17 in the city.

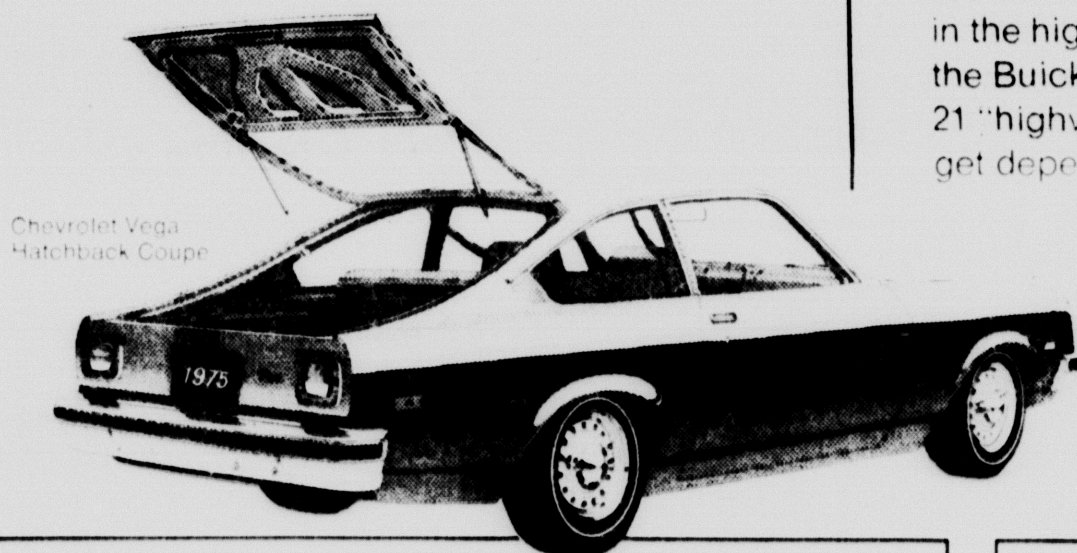

In addition, our Chevrolet Nova, Pontiac Ventura and Oldsmobile Omega with standard 250-cu.-in. in-line 6-cylinder engines all got 20 mpg in the highway driving test, 15 in the city test. And the Buick Skylark with standard 231-cu.-in. V-6 got 21 "highway," 15 "city." Of course, the mileage you get depends on where and how you drive.

LOWER OPERATING COSTS

If you followed the owner's manual for recommended service, we figure the 1975 Chevrolet Vega using unleaded fuel could save you up to $240 in parts, lubricants and labor over its 1974 counterpart using leaded fuel, if driven 50,000 miles. And the Pontiac Astre follows the same recommended maintenance schedule.

In addition, our in-line 6-cylinder models could save you up to $304 in scheduled maintenance, while our V-8 models could save you up to $350.

Of course, parts and labor costs vary throughout the country, but we've used current list prices on parts and figured labor at $11 per hour.

Mikkelson-Eckerson vows are exchanged

At an afternoon ceremony read in Pilgrim Congregational Church marriage vows were exchanged between Miss Kathleen Denise Eckerson of Montclair and Tony J. Mikkelson of Pomona.

Dr. Joseph M. Applegate read the double-ring ceremony for the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bruce A. Eckerson of Houston, Texas, formerly of Pomona, and the son of Mr. and Mrs. Melvin E. Mikkelson of Thousand Oaks.

The bride wore a floor-length princess-style gown of candlelight lace fashioned with long sleeves and a short train. Her illusion veil was fingertip length and she carried an old-fashioned bouquet of flowers with her mother's New Testament.

Mrs. Nancy Eckerson Oakley, sister of the bride, and Mrs. Charles Sidaway were matrons of honor and bridesmaids were Mrs. Mervin Simmons and Miss Kimberly McKown.

Kenneth Iriart was best man and ushers were Harry Buckner, Charles Sidaway and Michael Ladewig.

The reception was held at the Pomona Ebell Club.

The bride attended Cal Poly

Pomona and is presently a management trainee for Household Finance Corporation. She is a member of Gamma Omega Chi.

Mr. Mikkelson received a B. S. in accounting from Cal Poly Pomona and is employed in a CPA office in Santa Ana. He is a member of Kappa Sigma Phi fraternity and Pomona Junior Chamber of Commerce.

The couple will establish a home in Pomona.

Singles to meet Friday

The Claremont Singles will meet Friday in the round room of the Claremont United Methodist Church at 7:30 p.m. All single adults are welcome.

Mrs. Joan Overturf, area marriage and family counselor, will moderate a discussion on "Intimacy at Any Age."

Mrs. Overturf was educated at Pomona College and the University of Southern California where she served on the USC School of Social Work. He is a member of the American Association of Marriage and Family Counselors, the National Association of Social Workers and the Academy of Certified Social Workers.

For information about the group, persons may call Jim Burtain, 955-8429, or 629-3579 after 4:30 p.m.

Square dance club lists Feb. callers

The Pomona Bachelors' in Bachelorettes Square Dance Club has planned a dance Friday at the Women's Community Club, 172 W. Monterey Ave.

Skip Stanley will call for dancing from 8 to 10:30 p.m. New officers will be installed during the evening.

Ray Cox will call for the club's Feb. 21 dance at the community clubhouse, also from 8 to 11 p.m.

Sally Holtz is wed in Upland Church

MRS. BRUCE BLACK

Now residing in Ontario are newlyweds Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Thomas Black.

The bride is the former Sally Christine Holtz, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Holtz of Ontario. Parents of the groom are Mr. and Mrs. Robert Black of Lewiston, Idaho.

The Rev. Stan Fix officiated at the double-ring rites in the Upland United Methodist Church.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a white chiffon floor-length gown with lace inserts and sequins on the neckline and on the sleeves.

Her lace veil was accented with sequins and she carried a bouquet of white carnations, yellow roses and baby's breath.

Mrs. Edward Alarcon was matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Miss Wendy Bell of Provo, Utah, and Mrs. Alan Moore of Chino.

Edward Alarcon was best man. Ushers were Terry Gilstrap and Alan Moore.

A reception at the church honored the newlyweds.

Sweetheart Ball plans announced

Plans are completed for the Foothill Area Council of Beta Sigma Phi annual Sweetheart Ball scheduled Saturday at Pomona National Golf Course.

Mrs. Jerry Hart is second chairman. Chapters handling arrangements are: Beta Alpha Theta, reservations; Rho Chi, invitations and place cards; Xi Theta Gamma and Xi Zeta Gamma, crowning area; Xi Gamma Kappa, awards; Epsilon Beta, Gamma Alpha Iota and Preceptor Upsilon, programs.

The evening will begin with a social hour at 7 p.m. and will include crowning of queens from various chapters and dancing.

Leisure time

By the year 2000, it is estimated that there will be 50 million people with 20 years of unorganized leisure time ahead of them. "What we have to do is learn how to make the hours not at work as meaningful and as creative as those when we work," a physician stated recently at a meeting on aging.

Valentine fete planned by Star Steppers

The Star Steppers invited all square dancers to their Valentine Dance Saturday at 8 p.m. at the Washington Park Clubhouse.

Hal Nichols will be caller for the fun-level family club.

WORLD ALMANAC FACTS

People with special medical problems, such as diabetes, cardiovascular disease, epilepsy or allergy, are urged to wear an emblem identifying their illness as a safeguard against use of medication that might be injurious or fatal in an emergency. The World Almanac says, Medic Alert, which pioneered the use of informative emblems, says there are some 1.8-million epileptics, as well as diabetics, who may mistakenly be thought in-toxicated.

Let opponents muff chances

By Oswald & James Jacoby

Things started out badly for South. East's king of diamonds held the first trick and he returned the eight. South could play either the jack or nine of diamonds, but whichever one he played would be covered by West. So South could count two diamond losers, plus the ace of hearts and a possible club.

He could handle that club loser by leading a heart toward his hand and finessing the 10 spot. If East held the jack, South's contract would come home; if East didn't South would be only one down because while he would lose two hearts he would be able to get rid of his losing club later.

South didn't like this play and decided to give the opponents a chance to go wrong. He drew trumps with two leads and threw West in with his last diamond.

West had to decide between a club and a heart lead. Had he guessed the club South might well have gone down two, but as happen so often, West guessed wrong and led the four of hearts.

This took care of all South's problems in hearts and clubs and he made his rather doubtful contract.

MSAC offers assistance in reading

Assistance in reading will be offered by Mt. San Antonio College to those who have difficulty with the subject.

The course, offered under the adult education program, is for those who read at or below the eighth grade level and want to read better. The classes start this week.

"The Reading Clinic" is an individualized program in which the instructor works separately with each member of the class. The course is offered on Saturdays from 8 a.m. to noon and on Mondays from 6 to 9 p.m. for the next 11 weeks.

Advance registration is required. Those who are interested should call the college, 393-2211, ext. 347.

Sweepstakes winner in a jam over taxes

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — In 1973, Franklin McNulty, 50, Oakland, won $123,000 in the Irish Sweepstakes.

On Wednesday, a federal grand jury indicted him for trying to evade federal income taxes on his winnings.

State's error

Milk producers receive windfall

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — The state's grip on milk prices has resulted in multi-million dollar "windfall gains" for dairy farmers and a $55 million overcharge to California consumers, the auditor general disclosed today.

In a report to the Joint Legislative Audit Committee, Auditor General Harvey Rose recommended that the 40-year-old price controls governing the price of wholesale and retail milk be ended.

The state, through the Department of Food and Agriculture, sets the minimum price of milk at the producer, wholesale and retail levels. In most communities the minimum price is the same as the actual retail price. The average statewide cost of a half gallon of milk is 71 cents.

The report said a miscalculation by the Agriculture Department in computing farmers' costs had led to a $55 million overcharge to milk buyers since the next to last state approved increase in April. That increase added five cents to the price of a half gallon.

The auditor general recommended that the department recompute the excess charges "and lower the minimum producer milk price until the overcharge has been effectively returned to consumers."

The report also charged that the state's plan assigning quotas on the amount of Grade A milk each farmer can sell on the market has led to "windfall gains."

Rose said the quotas, originally issued by the state to dairymen at no cost and later sold between farmers, has reached an aggregate value of $499 million.

"The sale, by the producer, of quota originally allocated to him by the state at no cost provides the producer with a windfall gain," Rose said.

Agriculture Director C. Brunel Christensen and other department officials declined immediate comment on the audit, saying they had not seen it.

But in comments included in the report, Christensen said farmers in the past have produced milk at a loss resulting in a consumer advantage over the producer.

"Therefore," Christensen said, "it would not be equitable to return the overcharges, if they exist, to consumers at this time."

He added if overcharges are returned to consumers, then producers should be "compensated for any prior losses also."

Christensen added it was his belief that "the additional $55 million which has been received by producers as a result of the latest producer price increase for milk has now been completely justified through inflation."

The report said the department overestimated farmers' costs when it approved a five cent per-half-gallon increase last April. Production cost is a major factor in formulating increases.

The department revised its projections later "which contained significantly higher projected costs than the earlier projection," Rose said.

BUSINESS NEWS...

THE ITALIAN GARDENS FEATURES GREAT MUSIC

Andy Subara's Italian Gardens, located at 4620 Holt Blvd., Montclair, now features the "Mac" McReynolds Quartet every Saturday night. "Mac" was the house band at the USN Commissioned Officer's Club in Long Beach for several years — and plays your kind of music.

In addition to dining and dancing to one of the finest little bands around on Saturdays, guests will also enjoy a "flash back" to the Sunday jam sessions that were so popular with Southern California music lovers. Each Sunday from 3 to 7 p.m., you'll be able to enjoy a fine buffet and listen to some great jazz artists, too.

Later, on occasions, "Mac" will feature well-known singers from the "big band" era as well as some of the finest instrumental musicians around.

Dress will be casual, and as Andy says, "We want to give the people of this area a place where they can relax, and have a good time while enjoying good music."

JOLLY ROGER BEGINS NEW TERIYAKI BROCHETTE CAMPAIGN

With the New Year, The Jolly Roger Restaurants are celebrating 1975 with a new coupon campaign to help families stay within their budget and treat them to a delicious meal at any of the participating Jolly Roger locations. Doug Salisbury, Vice President of Jolly Roger, Inc., stated that the campaign is designed "for families who want to have a delicious dinner and an entertaining evening without spending a lot of money. Even without the coupon, our patrons know The Jolly Roger is famous for serving everything from a great hamburger to a complete steak and lobster dinner at prices everyone can afford."

The "Teriyaki Brochette for Two" is priced at only $6.95 for guests who bring in a coupon between now and February 28. Along with the steak brochette, dinner includes rice pilaf, a choice of soup or salad tossed with mixed marinated beans, hot homemade bread and a cup of the Jolly Roger's own special blend of coffee.

Soon to open are Jolly Roger Restaurants in Phoenix, Arizona and Irvine, California. These new restaurants will be modeled after large English country homes with red brick chimneys and paths lined with gas post lamps winding to the entrance. Like all Jolly Roger Restaurants, they will feature a varied menu with "food fit for a captain at prices the whole crew can afford." The restaurants will be designed on three levels with a separate Crow's Nest for cocktails and live entertainment. In recent months Jolly Roger Restaurants designed in this motif have opened in Puente Hills and Buena Park.

U.S. park service

Reservation system halted

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The National Park Service has abandoned for this year a reservation system for its 29,000 campsites, Director Gary E. Everhardt said Monday.

A system tried out for several years during 1974 became overloaded and embroiled in charges of conflict of interest hurled at former Park Director Ron Walker.

"We plan to reintroduce campsite reservations as soon as we can develop a system which can provide service to the public without serious complications or uncertainties," Everhardt said.

But, he said in 1975 campsites under National Park Service jurisdiction "will be available strictly on a first-come, first-served basis."

"We still believe that an effective reservation system is the fairest means of giving all potential park users an equal opportunity to use a campsite," he said.

Everhardt said that in addition to problems encountered with the trial reservation system the nation's economic problems and fuel shortages caused "unanticipated changes in traditional vacation travel patterns."

The Park Service plans to evaluate need for campsite reservations at some parks as a result of the changes in travel.

Everhardt also announced that this year camping facilities will be made available at Voyageurs National Park in Minnesota, Lake Meredith National Recreation Area in Texas and the St. Croix National Scenic Riverway in Wisconsin.

WORLD ALMANAC FACTS

Pro football's game attendance, including pre-season and post-season games, rose to an all-time high of 15,500,586 in 1973. The World Almanac says. Federal legislation required clubs to appear on local telecasts if any game was sold out 72 hours prior to kickoff. During the regular season, 9.48 per cent of the tickets sold were not used. In 1972, when local games were blacked out, 5.98 per cent of the tickets sold were not used.

Ear problems

DETROIT (UPI) — An estimated five million American youngsters suffer hearing problems that are not detected, according to Dr. A. Bruce Graham of the Henry Ford Hospital. Children who seem stupid or retarded at school may simply be unable to hear properly, Dr. Graham said.

13 million birds facing extinction

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Officials said Monday the Army has not yet decided whether it will attempt to kill about 13 million blackbirds roosting at Fort Campbell, Ky., and an ammunition plant at Milan, Tenn.

A Pentagon spokesman noted that Monday was the first day it could make such a decision under time limits set forth in environmental law. "The Army has not made a decision," he said.

The Army's proposed plans call for spraying a detergent on the birds that would dissolve their feather oils and cause them to freeze when temperatures fall below 45 degrees.

The Army and many citizen groups in the areas around the bases contend the birds and their droppings are a health hazard. But environmental groups have questioned both the need for an extermination program and the methods proposed by the Army.

Campgrounds closing

PORTLAND, Ore. (UPI) — National Forest visitors may find some of their favorite campgrounds closed this summer in Oregon and Washington, and they can blame it on higher costs.

Theodore A. Schlapfer, regional U.S. forester, said, "The budget has remained relatively constant while costs of operating and maintaining campgrounds have risen rapidly as a result of inflation and higher standards of sanitation."

The Forest Service is attempting to minimize the impact through management measures designed to cut costs. For example, garbage cans are removed from some campgrounds and campers are requested to pack their garbage out for disposal at home. Some campground units are closed during slack periods and opened during heavy use periods.

Schlapfer said that even with such management actions, it has become impossible to maintain acceptable standards of public safety and protection of resource values in all of the more than 1200 campgrounds in the national forests of Oregon and Washington. For this reason it is expected that some campgrounds will remain closed.

Last year there were 55 full campground closures for the season in Oregon and Washington. "It is too early to tell how many will be closed this year," Schlapfer said, "but it is expected that the number will run somewhat higher."

Most closures involve small campgrounds (one to five units) which are located in remote areas of the National Forests or are lightly used. In both cases, costs run high in relation to use.

93 miles per hour? We obviously don't recommend it, but it is reassuring to know that as you get onto a hectic expressway, a new Volkswagen Rabbit Hatchback has the power for incredible acceleration. From 0 to 50 in only 8.2 seconds. Quicker than a Monza 2+2.

38 miles per gallon? That's what the Rabbit averaged on the highway in the 1975 model Federal Environmental Protection Agency fuel economy tests. The Rabbit in the city averaged a nifty 24. Not bad for a sub-compact with all the interior room of some mid-size cars.

$2,999? That's what you pay for the car backed by the most complete and advanced car coverage plan in the business: The Volkswagen Owner's Security Blanket with Computer Analysis. Happy days are here again? We think you'll think so after you've driven a Rabbit.

City okays outline for spending federal aid money

- $500,000 to boost beautification
- $250,000 to spur home loan repairs
- $72,000 for lights
- $100,000 for new fire station

The Pomona City Council Monday night approved in concept a three-year spending plan for $2.8 million in federal-community development funds.

The plan was approved as presented by the city staff and Community Development Advisory Committee, which has held numerous community workshops and committee meetings to select a wide variety of projects.

Some of the highlights of the proposed plan include $500,000 for beautification, $250,000 for a low interest home improvement loan fund, $72,000 for street lights, $100,000 for the development of a new fire station, $65,000 for walkways at the civic center for the handicapped, and $40,000 for a mobile mini-city hall and community center.

The only project included in the plan that does not have the full backing of the advisory committee is $100,000 for a multi-purpose facility to house mental health, drug abuse, juvenile diversion and related projects.

Some members of the committee, reported Chairman Dave Bess, feel that purchase of a building might not be in the city's best interest. The project remained in the proposed plan, however, and will be the subject of further consideration.

With Monday's action by the council, the city staff will now refine the project proposals and submit a final application for the council's approval before submitting the application to the federal government by April 15.

In other business, the council approved an emergency ordinance creating a four-month moratorium on construction at the Phillips Ranch site in southwest Pomona.

The moratorium was approved to provide time for a thorough restudy of the site, which has come under heavy criticism for the extensive destruction of the natural hillside and what opponents call the low quality of the homes built and proposed for the site.

The council denied a request from Cole-Schaeffer Ambulance that the city join Los Angeles County's Emergency Aid Program (EAP).

The city of Pomona has not participated in the EAP for the last three years. Under the plan, the city would pay about $2,500 per month, which would offset "dry runs" and other non-collectible debts incurred by the ambulance operator.

The ambulance company had sought the city's participation in the program in fear that a legal technicality might force the company out of business.

The county council staff informed the city, however, that the company's position was not threatened and led to the council's denial of the request.

The council approved a request for a permit to stage a march from the Pomona Valley Chapter of the National Organization for Women. The march will be held along Holt Avenue on Feb. 15 from Indian Hill Boulevard to White Avenue.

The event will celebrate the birthday of Susan B. Anthony, pioneer women's rights activist.

Two school districts plan for big squeeze

... 62 teachers, 20% sports cut at Chaffey

A contingency plan should the district tax override fail was adopted by Chaffey school board Monday, calling for budget cuts of almost $2 million, the elimination of 62 existing teaching positions and a 20 per cent cut in high school team sports.

Board members also agreed to reduce the high schools to a five-period day and lower the graduation requirements from 229 units to 200 units. These cuts were made in the areas of English and social studies.

The action followed a lengthy discussion among members of the board and the teachers and students who filled the board room for the meeting.

Teachers, generally, were concerned about where the program cuts would be made. The students were more concerned with losing the teachers.

Ken Pedersen, a senior senator at Chaffey High School, told the school board, "We don't need air conditioning and shrubs. We need teachers. You're painting the ship and then letting it sink."

"This is a balanced approach," said board Chairman G. A. Chalfant. "These cuts should leave each department in a condition to be most readily rebuilt. If we do our part on the election, this is all academic."

Chaffey district, which administers Ontario, Chaffey, Upland, Alta Loma and Montclair high schools, will go to the voters March 4 with a tax override proposal.

In Proposition C on the ballot, the district will ask a three-step tax increase. It would amount to 34 cents per $100 of assessed valuation in 1975-76, 70 cents in 1976-77 and 83 cents in 1977-78.

Cuts included in the contingency plan are the elimination of 25 certificated positions which had been proposed for next year, and a like number of classified positions which also had been proposed for next year, resulting not only in a savings on salaries but also on employee benefits the district must pay.

Other areas trimmed were $146,575 from books, supplies and equipment replacement; $20,000 from contracts, utilities, travel and in-service training; $257,004 from capital outlay, equipment and building and site improvement; and $103,050 from team sports, driver-training, custodial service and grounds upkeep.

Board members said by reducing the high schools to a five-period day and eliminating the 62 existing teacher positions, a savings of approximately $700,000 would be realized. This averages out to $12,000 per teacher.

With these cuts affected, district expenditures for 1975-76 would balance with total anticipated income at $19,285,837.

In other actions, the Chaffey board approved a plan recommended by the administration to relocate district personnel offices into Tower Hall, a pre-Field Act structure which must be vacated by students this June.

The students will be moved into the district administration building.

Administrators were directed to develop plans for leasing or building new warehouse space and to complete the Fourth Street area by the new math-science building.

Castle Rock and Vejar Elementary Schools for grades one through six and at Walnut High School for grades seven through 12.

This is a departure from previous years when seventh and eighth grades were housed at Suzanne.

Moving intermediate students to the high school will give them additional opportunities in specialized shop, laboratory science, physical education, home economics, art and business education.

Complete information about summer classes will be made available to parents in April.

... $400,000 cutback required at Walnut

Walnut Valley Unified School District must cut its expenses by $400,000, board members were told Monday night by David L. Brown, district superintendent.

He outlined possible reductions totaling $700,000, most of them involving reduction of personnel.

The board instructed him to select priorities among possible reductions as a basis for future consideration.

Also under consideration will be a revenue limit increase election.

Board members also approved application for approximately $20,000 in federal funds for a program to benefit students at Suzanne Intermediate School and Walnut High School.

The program is designed to increase awareness of career opportunity, realism in the student's view of potential and interests, relevancy of classroom subject matter to job needs and guidance.

The board okayed 1975 summer school for the first through sixth grades June 23 to July 18. Seventh through 12th grades will be in session from June 16 to July 25.

Summer sessions will be offered at

Cucamonga Channel work in Ford's budget

A much discussed program of improving the Cucamonga Channel to prevent future flooding in western San Bernardino County received a boost this week when President Ford's proposed budget included $2.3 million for the project.

The channel system, which includes Cucamonga Creek, Deer Canyon Creek and Demons Creek, is designed to carry storm water from above Upland and Alta Loma some 14 miles south to the Prado Basin south of Chino.

County officials propose to line the channel with concrete floors and walls, widen some areas and build debris basins. Total cost is estimated at $80 million. This is designed to prevent a repeat of the 1968 floods when water spilled over the dirt channel and damaged homes, businesses and factories.

Some $600,000 in federal funds was allocated for the 1974-75 fiscal year to initiate work at the Prado Basin, reported Art Sidler, county flood control director.

With the additional $2.3 million, this could extend the extent of the project north to about the Pomona Freeway, he added. "And with the $2.9 million in federal money, the flood control district could add about $1 million for the first phase of work."

The county would allocate funding for bridges, utility relocations, rights-of-way and local site draining, he added.

Sidler said the $2.3 million was less than $5 million proposed for the next fiscal year by the California Water Commission. "But the amount proposed definitely shows the project is on the way."

The U.S. Corps of Engineers will do the engineering and design work and award the construction contract. After the channel is completed, it is then turned over to the flood control district for maintenance, said Sidler.

President Ford's proposed budget also included $8.5 million to complete the Lytle and Warm Creek flood control channel near Colton. The channel now extends from near Foothill Boulevard to the Santa Ana River. The new allocation would provide construction of levees along the river.

J. C. Penney chairman attends plaza luncheon

Donald V. Seibert, chairman of the board and chief executive officer of the J. C. Penney Co., Inc., was guest of honor at a luncheon today at the Penney store in the Montclair Plaza.

Wallace J. Paprocki, store manager, hosted the event which was also attended by Penney executives Robert R. Van Kleeck, western regional vice president; Charles R. Steinorth, area manager; and Paul Leonard, district manager, as well as other members of the company's management staff.

The luncheon followed a tour of the facility and an award presentation by Seibert to Paprocki in recognition of the Montclair store leading its district in sales increases for four consecutive years.

Seibert, elected to his post last Oct. 1, began his career with the Penney company nearly 28 years ago. A native of Hamilton, Ohio, he joined the firm in 1947 at the Bradford, Pa., store.

Rising through various management levels in several East Coast stores, he became manager of his first store at Levittown, Pa., in 1959, transferring to Toledo, Ohio, in 1969 in the same function.

He was assigned to the company's New York central office in 1963 as director of planning and research and assumed increasingly responsible positions during the decade. This culminated in his election last fall as chairman of the board and chief executive officer.

The company operates 2,036 retail units in the United States, Italy and Belgium, with 166 stores in California.

College study for handicapped eyed

Educational opportunities for the handicapped at the nearby junior colleges will be discussed by a panel from the colleges at tonight's meeting of the California Association of the Physically Handicapped.

The meeting at Casa Colina Hospital convenes at 7:30 p.m.

Moderator for the discussion will be Bruce Hillman of Col Poly Pomona.

Others who will present college programs for the handicapped and plans for the future are Vince O'Boyle of Citrus College, Mel Gustafson of Mt. San Antonio College and Ed Andrews of Chaffey College.

The program is open to all interested persons and CAPH membership is open to physically handicapped persons in the area.

Two councilmen abstain in vote

Two members of the Montclair City Council abstained from action on an allocation for an insurance premium increase Monday night to avoid possible conflict of interest.

Mayor Harold Hayes and Councilman Tom McClure refused to participate in a vote approving $10,000 from the contingency fund for liability insurance premium increase. Both men are employed in the insurance field.

The increase of $10,000 brings the city's total liability insurance cost to $32,000. The firm of Chubb-Pacific has discontinued its coverage of municipalities, and cities contracting with the firm have been forced to seek coverage elsewhere at substantial increases, said Tom Mauk, assistant city administrator.

The Montclair liability insurance is now handled by three firms. Mauk explained that it was not feasible for the city to self-insure on liability because of the expense involved. It is self-insured on workmen's compensation without increased costs or cumbersome paperwork.

Hayes commented that the League of California Cities is concerned about the problem of high premium costs incurred by cities. The league has established a special committee, on which Hayes serves, to study the matter and investigate alternatives. McClure, an insurance adjuster, abstained from the motion for approving the additional funds because "this is the line that I'm employed in. And it may or may not be a firm I am affiliated with that handles this."

Hayes asked City Atty. Eugene Demchuk if his job as an insurance underwriter was in conflict with this issue. Demchuk assured the mayor that if there were a legal conflict, he would request that Hayes abstain, but he saw no legal conflict.

Hayes abstained in order to "eliminate any doubt about conflict."

In other matters, the council acknowledged a letter from the Montclair Chamber of Commerce supporting the location of the Air National Guard at Ontario International Airport, and opposing its move to March Air Force Base in Riverside.

Developer wins zone change but loses on tract layout

Lewis Homes of California received good and bad news from members of the Upland City Council Monday night.

The good news was the approval of the first reading of an ordinance which changes an area of 11 acres between 15th and 16th Streets west of San Antonio Avenue from A1 agriculture to R1C residential, allowing for the construction of 64 homes on 10,000 square foot lots.

The bad news was the temporary rejection of the subdivider's map tract. As proposed, the tract has seven houses facing 16th Street with an additional older home, already in the middle of the area, not a part of the addition.

At present, there has been no firm provision to include the front of this lot in the plans for widening and improving the street. The council members feel the condition could create an area of congestion and hazard and postponed the acceptance of the tract map until this street improvement is assured.

With Councilwoman Ina Petrolas casting the only negative vote, the council voted to amend its basic pay plan for five positions which are to be filled under the Comprehensive Employment and Training Act, which provides federal funds to cities to help reduce unemployment.

The positions are temporary and would not be continued after federal funds have stopped. Lee Travers, Upland city manager, told the council members.

Classifications and monthly salaries approved were recreation center coordinator, $471-573; draftsman, $602-731; police officer trainee, $647-757; automotive storekeeper, $680-826; and assistant building inspector, $767-933.

As its next step in qualifying for federal funds under the Housing and Community Development program, the Upland council authorized the joint filing of the application with San Bernardino County and named Travers as the authorized representative of the city in connection with the application.

To obtain the funds, cities must meet certain conditions in utilizing the money. Travers told the council that his staff has reviewed the conditions and finds them in line with those the city has previously agreed to for other federally funded projects.

Mrs. Petrolas expressed a fear that the city might be getting more involved with federal control than it desired and voted against the motion.

Developer Bob Armstrong was granted a one-year extension of approval from a tentative tract map consisting of 23 lots on the north side of 20th Street east of San Antonio Avenue in a R-1-B zone. The area is an extension of a previously approved tract, council members said in approving the request.

The council voted to contact the San Bernardino County Planning Department and voice concern over a requested zoned change from M1 to M2 (manufacturing) on 62 acres of property west of Benson Avenue and north and south of 20th Street.

While the land in question is not in the city, the Upland council feels that it will eventually become part of the city and has included it in the master plan. This plan designates the land for open land use with single family homes to the east of it.

Travers told the council that "it's pretty definite that a hot mix plant would go there." He added that the environmental impact study has not been completed.

'Confidence' is catching on

The winter of the automakers' discontent appears to be turning into an early and prosperous spring.

The big three of Chrysler, Ford and General Motors, plus the little one of American Motors, are all now offering cash rebates of between $200 and $600 to auto buyers in an attempt to lift the industry out of one of its worst slumps since World War II. As a result, sales in the past few weeks have made a decided turnaround.

Another big boost is coming from hundreds of other companies, from banks and major manufacturers down to golf shops and clothing stores, who have instituted employee or customer rebate or discount plans based on the purchase of new cars. These are in addition to those offered by the auto companies.

For instance, the Beloit, Wis., State Bank will reduce finance charges for new auto loans by $100, or around 20 per cent of the typical amount, and banks in other cities are offering similar incentives. Gulf and Western Industries is offering its employees $100. Ditto Irvin Industries, to any of its employees who buy a 1975 car or truck for which the company makes seat belts.

Falcon Golf, Inc., of Ferndale Mich., will knock $200 off a set of golf clubs with purchase of a new U.S.-made car; and a clothier in Birmingham, Mich., is advertising a 10 per cent discount to anyone who has proof of a new car purchase, and the Detroit Red Wings hockey club will give two tickets to a home game to anyone who buys a new car from an area dealer by Feb. 28.

Sperry and Hutchinson Co. is giving 50,000 S&H stamps to any of its employees who buy a new car before March 31, and WPIX-TV in New York has announced it will run free television ads to promote auto sales.

The spark that ignited it all seems to have been struck last December when William W. Keeler, president of Warner Electric Brake & Clutch Co., and Rodney F. Ackerman, vice president of auto sales, were facing the bleak prospect of curtailing the company's output of air-conditioner compressor clutches for Chrysler and American Motors and laying off 10 per cent of their work force.

They decided to switch their attention from doom and gloom to searching for a positive idea that would perk up employee morale, help two major customers and stimulate business in local plant communities. They called it "Confidence in America."

On Dec. 16, Warner Electric proposed the program of cash rebates to Chrysler and American Motors. The rest is history.

It's estimated that more than 500,000 employees in the automobile and automobile-related industries — not to mention millions of consumers under the various auto company plans — are now eligible for rebates up to $700, with more companies joining the "Confidence in America" incentive program every day.

The good old election days

Way back in the early 19th century, when America was a nation of farmers, legislation directed that national elections take place during the first week of November because "harvesting is over then, and winter has not yet made the roads impassable."

Tuesday was designated instead of Monday, says the National Geographic Society's historical oddities division, because many voters lived a day's journey from a polling place and objected to traveling on Sunday.

Despite the vast changes that have overtaken America since then, there seems no particular reason to abandon the custom. At least one state, however, is going to consider doing away with another relic of the old days.

Ohio State Rep. John A. Galbraith plans to introduce legislation to allow liquor stores and bars in the state to operate normally on election day. At present, bars may open for business but can sell only low-powered beer.

The law was apparently passed to try to keep unscrupulous politicians from buying votes with drinks. "I think we have now advanced beyond that," says Galbraith.

Cynics would agree. These days the problem is not politicians buying votes but the other way around.

A definition

The words "radical", "conservative" and "reactionary" are thrown around rather freely these days. Usually, with varying degrees of feeling, and a sliding scale of definition.

Without making any assessment of those meanings, might we offer for what it is worth a definition enunciated 64 years ago this month by Woodrow Wilson:

"By 'radical' I understand one who goes too far; by 'conservative' one who does not go far enough; by 'reactionary' one who won't go at all."

Despite its age, still not too bad a guideline, if you don't take it any more literally than Wilson meant it at the time.

Teacher development defended

This letter is to present a different and, we believe, more valid view of Professional Development Centers than was expressed in this column on Jan. 24.

Research has shown that a teacher's knowledge and skills are the most important classroom variable in a child's success in school. It is imperative, therefore, that every possible effort be made to insure that all educators continuously keep abreast of sound educational theories as supported by ongoing research and that they have adequate opportunities to acquire new concepts and to develop teaching techniques.

The teaching-learning process is a highly complex transaction which requires a vast array of teaching skills to promote success. Professional development activities are designed to increase skills and effectiveness of educators, hence, to increase the success and achievement of learners. Unfortunately, until the advent of recent legislation, combined with special funding for staff development, most school districts throughout this country, for a variety of reasons, mostly financial, have seriously neglected to provide more than minimal and superficial in-service for teachers and administrators.

Soured on Red-baiter Sourwine

WASHINGTON — The Senate's weary old Communist-chasers, the last survivors of the McCarthy era, are losing interest in the Red Menace. They would rather bask in the tropical sun or gamble at Reno's roulette wheels.

In pursuit of the pleasant life, the Senate Internal Security Committee's top watchdogs have arranged lately to look for subversives in such vacation spots as Miami, San Juan, Mexico City and Reno. Their expenses, of course, have been charged to the taxpayers.

Chief counsel Julian G. Sourwine, once a great grizzly bear of a man, is Capitol Hill's most renowned Red-baiter. The years have whitened his hair. He has become rumpled and flabby. His fat fingers now tremble as he fidgets with his tape recorder.

Gone are the days when Sourwine struck terror in the hearts of witnesses who were hauled, willy-nilly, before the Senate Internal Security Committee. In the heyday of McCarthyism, he was so powerful that he sometimes was referred to as the 97th Senator. (There were only 96 elected Senators in those days). Today, Sourwine likes to putter in his yard and pamper the potted plants in his basement hideaway. He has always had a weakness for the gaming tables. So he also likes to slip away from Washington to play the roulette wheels in Reno, where his mother and son happen to live.

Although Reno is not known as a center of Communist subversion, Sourwine has stuck the taxpayers for his trips. One recent trip, for example,

The results are obvious, and indefensible waste of human resources and dollars in perpetuating outmoded and ineffective instructional practices. Fortunately, the situation is less than tragic only because countless individual educators have recognized the need for continuous professional growth and have secured it at their own expense during summer months or evenings. This is a remarkable credit to the profession, but it does not insure a systematic total staff development program, nor does it allow for those educators who fail to seek to improve their performance at their own expense.

We agree that removal of teachers from their classrooms for in-depth in-service experiences is not the ideal. We feel this can be defended, however, on the basis that the teacher's current classes will derive some immediate benefits at the conclusion of the sessions and that all future classes will also benefit. The alternatives to temporary removal from the classroom would be to schedule sessions after regular school hours, on weekends, or during summer months.

It is uncertain who the "frank teachers and authorities" are who appear to criticize the Professional Development sessions as ineffective. This has certainly not been our observation. Responses of those attending have been overwhelmingly positive, and we have received an abundance of verbal and written comments of appreciation and recommendations from teachers to continue and extend these professional growth opportunities. Also, we have witnessed better teaching on the part of participants.

In a constantly changing world, we believe students must be taught the importance of lifelong learning. Are educators themselves exempt from the very concept they teach? We think not. It is incredible that teachers would experience four weeks of intensive study and practice of the best known current educational concepts and techniques without benefiting. In such cases we suspect the problem would be not with the Professional Development Center, but elsewhere.

We agree with one recommendation of the Jan. 24 letter. Taxpayers should communicate with legislators, the governor and President Ford, not to complain, but to commend them for finally recognizing a demonstrated and urgent need. —Ray L. Thomas and William E. Pitts, directors of secondary and elementary education, respectively, Pomona Unified School District cost the taxpayers $908.63 for air fare, car rental and per diem. He didn't bill the taxpayers for per diem during the days he actually spent in Reno, but he collected for his other expenses.

Sourwine's chief investigator, Altonse Tarabochia, has also flown to Miami, San Juan and Mexico City at the taxpayers' expense. He owns property in Miami, and relatives live in Mexico City.

Between the two of them, Sourwine and Tarabochia have spent thousands on these junkets while their committee work has lapsed. Their most recent major report has nothing to do with Miami, San Juan, Mexico City or Reno. It is a crackpot report on marijuana, prepared mainly by an outside consultant.

Other recent reports have been the work largely of the FBI, CIA and Library of Congress. The staff, nevertheless, has passed off these reports as their own research.

They use code words to hide the identity of the agencies which actually produce the reports. In the routing slips and private references, the FBI is called the "Shrine" or "Shriners" and the CIA is referred to as the "Masons."

Sourwine, a tyrant in his small corner of the Senate basement, uses the committee staff to type his personal letters, including orders for bulbs for his home garden. The staff has also typed articles which he has written anonymously for conservative publications.

exposed. All of us felt the kick.

And then there was the humiliation of being forced to pay protection money to Arab nations. In effect, they threatened our economic life if we refused.

A generation's preoccupations with putting out the world's fires had caused us to neglect the home fires. Now — our guilt complex assuaged, our own resources depleted, our own economy ailing, our own dollar with cancer — Americans are putting America first.

At the World Food Conference in Rome, our nation's leadership backed off from feeding and funding everybody. We told the oil-rich Mideast nations it's now their turn.

Here is Secretary of State Henry Kissinger saying, "No, we will not rebuild North Vietnam."

Remembering the degree to which we lavished our largess rebuilding Japan and Germany, this turnaround is particularly significant.

One of his recent literary works, for example, was published in an anti-Communist journal called Twin Circle. Although Sourwine worked on the article and had it typed on government time, he pocketed the $100 fee he got for his efforts.

We found Sourwine surrounded by his potted plants in his dreary basement domain. The walls were adorned with inscribed photographs of the great, all attesting to the excellence and importance of Julian G. Sourwine.

He fixed our reporter, Rosanne Weissman, with his famous accusatory gaze. "I am not a chiseler," he announced. When she asked how his wife happened to wind up on the congressional payroll, he replied icily: "I think you're despicable."

But he conceded that he may have had his personal letters and articles typed by government clerical help. He also confessed that he played the roulette wheels both in Nevada and abroad. But he hotly insisted that he always paid of his gambling and other debts.

Tarabochia said: "There was always a reason for me going on these trips. They all relate to hearings and the obtaining of information." But he conceded he had visited his family and friends on the trips.

Meanwhile, times have changed in the Senate Internal Security Committee. The white-haired old Sourwine increasingly spends more time with a little circle of trucking applauders. It isn't like it used to be.

"No," says our secretary of state. "North Vietnam has not lived up to its cease-fire agreements; we hereby abrogate ours."

Liberals recently elected to Congress are sounding more conservative than the previous generation's conservatives ever dared to sound in their renunciation of American money for foreign aid, admonishing President Ford to "park his jet and tend the home fronts."

The new isolationism is brought into sharp focus in this statement of Los Angeles' Police Chief Ed Davis: "U.S. leaders should forget the rest of the world and mind their domestic chores."

He says, "I'm sick and tired of our leaders going to other parts of the world to try to make other people safe and secure when we had 70 fatal juvenile gang shootings in Los Angeles this year." Chief Davis says our nation is suffering from "the sin of neglect."

Just in jest

Times may be tough but not for some of California's politicians. At last count they had over $400,000 in surplus campaign funds still waiting to be spent.

And in addition to our politicians there are also some sugar tycoons who are not particularly worried about where the next dollar is coming from. Although their company only showed a profit of 51 cents per share in 1973, it was able to declare a profit amounting to $18.09 a share in 1974.

Also, times are not too tough for our Supreme Court Justices. Maybe they're not getting filthy rich but think of the filthy fun they're having trying to decide whether or not topless dancers are protected by the First Amendment.

However, if you can't become a politician, a sugar tycoon or a Supreme Court Justice, maybe your best bet is to change places with a gorilla. A couple of them in a zoo in Cincinnati were given a birthday party complete with a birthday cake. And in another zoo, under the heading of sex education, two more gorillas were recently favored with a private showing of specially selected pornographic films.

TOM TIEDE

Averting Boston's 2nd revolution

"The law is wrong, the government is wrong, I'm sick and tired of being pushed around."

—Nancy Yotts, South Boston

BOSTON (NEA) — It still seems strange to some to hear Nancy Yotts criticize the system. Even in these times when such is the predilection of increasing numbers of citizens, when grumbles can be expected at the drop of an opportunity from young people, poor people, black people, it remains a kind of contradiction for Mrs. Yotts to do likewise.

She is lower middle class white, married to a hard hat, backbone of the community and all that. It is accurate to say the larger society has grown used to her kind suffering in silence and anonymity.

Small wonder then that as Yotts and much of the rest of the working class population of South Boston continue their loud protest against school busing, their motives and emotions are largely misunderstood. Branded racists since last September's school opening, the epithet is inappropriate.

"All we want is fairness," says Mrs. Yotts, her arms folded over a housewife's cardigan, part of her hair pinned in curls. "Blacks have been caught up in it, sure, but we'd be complaining whatever their color. If you pulled my boy out of his school and replaced him with anybody I'd stand up and howl."

There is no reason not to believe Mrs. Yotts. If anything is known about America's fundamental working class it is that its members are candid to a fault. If a trucker hates blacks, he picks no bones about it. Similarly, the obvious racists connected with the Boston busing dispute have identified themselves by word and deed. They, however, do not predominate. Why then the racist charge? Because it is an easy answer; the hard thing to do would be for Boston and America to admit that the wants and reasonings of its working stiffs have, for decades, been omitted from the process of progressive thought.

The omission is easily explained. Descendants of Jacksonian America, heroes of democratic mythology, the working whites (largely comprised of ethnic groups—In Boston, the Irish) have been thought to be primary beneficiaries of the American experience. The rich got richer, which is true in all nations, but here workers profited, too.

As the nation changes, however, the class does not. Thus the workers have been left behind socially, economically and philosophically. Shouldering the heaviest of all tax burdens and worried about changing moralities, as the late Saul Alinsky said, they now "feel more alone than any other member of society."

This, then, is the root of the Boston matter. "Goddamit," says a Southie, "I pay for this country out of my own pocket but nobody gives a crud what I say." Buffeted by the black lobby, the liberal lobby and political muscle, unchampioned labor has simply decided to fight back. Violence may be the wrong kind of combat but men who work on the docks know they can't compete intellectually.

"How far you think we'd get if we wrote a letter to the editor?" grumps a man in a tam o'shanter at the South Boston Information Center. "The highest up you get in this neighborhood is a cop. We got no open line to the mayor, you know. Sometimes you just have to get attention."

It would, of course, be ever so much better if the "bust head" theory of persuasion was absent here. Yet at least the practitioners come by it honestly, civil rights movements historically grab headlines with brutality. "And the thing is," says Nancy Yotts, "no matter how we went about it, the protest would be rapped. We're not black, you see, we're white. Try getting sympathy on that."

In fact, most Southies do not really want sympathy, only understanding. And fair judgment. Given that, the American way, there should be no reason to expect bloodletting forever here. Denied it, however, the working class is stripped of its cherished protection of justice, and results may be dreadful. There is no revolution like a working man's revolution—Boston stands by its backbone.

Heartline: How much will CHAMPUS pay if I am in the hospital? I am a veteran.—M.W.

Answer: CHAMPUS will pay 75 per cent of the public charges of the hospital and 75 per cent of the reasonable charges of professional personnel.

Heartline: I am 66 and my wife is now 65. She started drawing at age 62 from her own Social Security benefits. Can she now transfer to mine and receive higher benefits?—J.K.

Answer: Generally yes, but it depends upon her present income and yours. She would not receive the full 50 per cent, however, due to her early retirement.

Heartline: I am retired and working at a job making less than $210 per month. I am also self-employed and working less than 30 hours per month. Can I do both without being penalized under Social Security?—B.W.

Answer: Yes, except in very unusual cases, you can.

Heartline: Are railroad retirement benefits subject to income taxes?

Answer: Regular railroad retirement and survivor benefits are not subject to federal or state income taxes and should not be listed on your tax return. Unemployment and sickness benefits paid by the Board are also nontaxable. On the other hand, supplemental employee annuities must be included along with other taxable income on your federal income tax return. The board will send you a form early in 1975 that will show the total amount of supplemental annuity payments you received in 1974. However, while supplemental annuities are subject to federal taxes, they have been ruled to be exempt from state income taxes.

Q. "The English, the French and the Spanish all tried to occupy early North America. To what do you attribute the fact that the English were the most successful?"

A. They brought women.

Q. "Is it ever proper for a Navy man to salute with his left hand?"

A. If his right arm is in a sling, it is. Or if he's doing something with his right hand that he can't stop doing at the moment.

A CAT's digestive tract is four times the length of its body. A goat's digestive tract is 26 times the length of its body. How come the difference? Why, sir, there's always that sort of difference between the carnivorous animal and the vegetation eater.

BROADCASTERS

It takes just one extraordinary ad lib performance sometimes to boost a newscaster into national prominence. Walter Cronkite certainly was well known before election night in 1962. But when hour after hour that evening he ad libbed so remarkably from the anchor chair, his position as the nation's top man on camera was made. Dan Rather jumped to some sort of national fame literally overnight years ago after he stood in his shirt-sleeves atop a Galveston tower to ad lib for many hours in the wreckage of a terrible hurricane. But go back further. Gabriel Heatter in 1936 went on radio to broadcast the electrocution of Bruno Hauptmann, the kidnapper of the Lindbergh baby. But the electricity failed. The chair in New Jersey's Death House wouldn't work. For 53 minutes until the thing was fixed, Heatter ad libbed about the crime, the trial, the legal maneuvers and the tension in that prison. It was such a tremendous performance that Hauptmann was not the only person to get an electrifying experience that day. Heatter for the rest of his life was a household name.

ANN LANDERS

Selfishness, hate usually behind girls who are fun-loving virgins

Dear Ann Landers: You'll be hearing plenty about that letter from the 18-year-old "fun-loving" virgin who is so proud of herself for keeping "everything intact." It seems her boyfriend wants her to give in, but she is determined to take her virginity to the marriage bed. I quote: "I've already told him that if the torture gets too much, he can shove off. But he still sticks like flypaper."

In high school, we called those types "Professional Virgins." They drove guys crazy, flirting and teasing. They went just as far as they could without crossing the line — with no regard whatever for the agony and frustration of the poor fellow who was expected to "cool it" on demand.

Girls who behave that way are extremely selfish. Moreover, they usually hate men and use their bodies to punish them. If I were in that dude's place, I'd shove off. NO girl is better than a tease. — In The Know

Dear In: You're right about the mail. I heard plenty about "the tease" and most of the letters came from high school and college students (males) who called her names the papers wouldn't print. Thanks for your letter. It was the best of the bunch.

Dear Ann Landers: Re your column about purse-snatchers. After having had mine snatched four times, I decided the best way to avoid a fifth such occurrence was not to carry one.

My keys, change, and a few dollar bills go into one pocket, my lipstick and compact and hankie go into another pocket. My credit cards I leave home, unless I intend to go shopping, then I put the two or three I might need in my shoe.

I haven't been robbed since, and I feel a lot safer. These days a junkie in "Fun City" would just as soon kill you for your pocketbook as look at you. It's amazing how much stuff women carry in their purses that they really don't need. Sign me — Fearless And Happier

Dear F and H: I agree. Just for the fun of it, ladies, look inside your purse right now and you'll discover the writer is correct. Too many of us are slaves to habit. The habit of carrying a purse can be broken, if a woman puts her mind to it.

Dear Ann Landers: There is this neat girl I've known for quite a while. She is cool, with it, and has lots of friends. Everyone enjoys having her around. She's the kind your mother would love. The problem.

Her grammar is something you have to hear to believe. This chick is a high school sophomore, yet she says things like, "Me and him went skating," or,

"We was walking arm in arm." This afternoon she was showing me two poems she had written and asked if I would tell her "which is worse."

Is there any hope for this girl? What can be done to get her to speak decent English? How did she get to be a high school sophomore when she couldn't pass a fourth-grade English grammar test? Please answer these questions. I'd like to help her. — Embarrassed Friend

Dear Friend: I'd like an answer to that last question myself. I receive letters every day from high school students whose grammar (and spelling) is out of this world.

The only solution for your friend is to get private tutoring, work like a dog, and keep at it until she is able to overcome her deeply ingrained speech habits. I hope she is willing to do it, because if she isn't she is destined to go through life sounding like an ignoramus.

Are your parents too strict? Hard to reach? Ann Landers's booklet, "Bugged By Parents? How to Get More Freedom," could help you bridge the generation gap. Send 50 cents in coin with your request and a long, stamped self-addressed envelope to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 1400, Elgin, Ill. 60120.

BERNICE BEDE OSOL
For Wednesday, Feb. 5, 1975

ARIES (March 21-April 19) It's good to be optimistic regarding the outcome of events. It's equally important that your optimism is based upon fact.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) A worthwhile opportunity will come through another. If you're not on the ball, you'll not realize its full benefits.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Weigh issues carefully before major decisions or you're likely to make an error in judgment difficult to rectify.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Work now for that which offers you an immediate return for your efforts, rather than banking on what the future may bring.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You'll be disappointed with some friends at this time if you expect more than they can give. Appreciate them for themselves.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Be of service because you're needed, not because you think it will impress another. A job well done is your reward.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) You have some good ideas but don't depend on others to supply the muscle. Success comes only if you do it yourself.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) You still have impractical urges to spend beyond your means. Pull in your horns today or you'll be sorry.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You have a tendency today to exaggerate a bit. It may make a more colorful tale, but you won't be believed.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Be generous within reasonable bounds to one who needs your help now. Don't boast of your noble deed.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) You still have to keep a tight rein financially. Don't spend foolishly for things unessential to your practical needs.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Don't deal in half-measures now or perform less than you know you're capable of. Set your sights on victory.

your birthday Feb. 5, 1975

You will make two interesting friends this year. Both will add lustre and zest to your life. One will stimulate your creative interests; the other, how to gain knowledge.

"There is a sexual blurring going on. The boys are looking more feminine. But they aren't sexy. Maybe it's like those rats who, when overcrowded, get very bland and lose all interest in sex."

—Author Gore Vidal on young peoples' changing sexual attitudes.

"Yasir Arafat's propagandists use the methods of (Josef) Goebbels. With our limited means, we have a tough time fighting them."

—Michael Shasari, Israel's Minister of Information, stating the Palestine Liberation Organization's information sources use tactics similar to those of Nazi Germany's propaganda minister.

RATTLES & STRAWS

In the A.M., no news is good news

By JOSEPH H. FIRMAN

It's lucky that the creators, performers and advertisers of such TV shows as Today, Tonight, Tomorrow, and Day Before Yesterday are not counting on me to support them. I have never seen any.

Today comes on in the morning when I am showering, shaving, spilling my coffee, assuring little Timmy he'll make Little League if he keeps his head down on ground balls, shouting to Sally that I don't know who stole her white blouse, spilling my coffee, trying to read the sports page. Other than that, I am completely idle. Also late for work. One thing I do not need added to the chaotic schedule is anything on television, from newscasters reciting the day's disasters in jolly voices to chirpy music and dreary hostesses interviewing dreary people.

Now comes AM America, which ABC cleverly plugs as America (isn't that inspired?) with, I assume, the same format and rollicking idiocy of NBC's Today and CBS's Morning News. Happy accounts of inflation and unemployment while I'm burning the toast. List of latest bomb explosions in New York, London, Beirut, Tel Aviv (underline any four) while I am spilling egg on my tie. The latest reports on shootings and stabbings while I am gathering up school books and kicking the kids out-doors.

There is no morning disaster from Moscow to Mazatlan like a father with a hangover trying to find his daughter's missing blouse. There is no calamity in the Near, Middle or Far East like a car with a dead battery when you're already late to work. There is no pandemonium, at home or abroad, like the average suburban family getting off to school and work on an average morning.

AM America was "market-researched" (a term I fail to find in my dictionary, thank heavens!) by Magid Associates of New York (where else?) and designed to appeal to an untapped audience of 18 to 39. Today's viewers average 51—and they must all be single and unemployed.

Demographics is the in thing on TV

DOCTOR COMMENTS

Don't change doses without advice

By LAWRENCE E. LAMB, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB—I'm 60 and my doctor has me taking one digitalis tablet a day. I've taken it for more than two years now for irregular beats of the heart. He says my heart is weak, but I have read that taking digitalis for a long period of time can cause digitalis poisoning with serious heart symptoms. Is this true? If there are any side effects what are they?

DEAR READER—Anyone taking digitalis or similar medicines should never, absolutely never, stop or decrease the dosage without their doctor's advice. To do so is an invitation to disaster.

It is true too much digitalis can cause digitalis poisoning. You can also be poisoned by too much aspirin, too much coffee and too much oxygen in the air you breathe.

There is a good range between the amount of digitalis you need for most heart conditions and the amount that causes toxicity. Your doctor strives to regulate you on an amount that will help you but won't harm you. When he has you regulated you will not develop toxicity simply because you continue to take the medicine year after year. If your requirements change he may need to change the dose.

Digitalis in the proper amounts increases the strength of your heart and may help to control certain irregularities. When you take too much it may cause irregularities of the heart. The type of irregularities and other changes on your cardiogram tell the doctor if you are getting too much digitalis, if that should occur. Stay on your medicine, unless your doctor tells you otherwise.

DEAR DR. LAMB — Is there any danger in taking a daily tablet of vitamin B-12, combined with Brewer's dried yeast? Each tablet contains 10 micrograms of B-12 and five grains of Brewer's dried yeast.

Is it possible that the vitamins and yeast have added to my vitality and better overall feeling (less fatigue)? This is being taken without my physician's advice—who was unable to pin point reason for my "blah" feeling. Hemoglobin count is good. Or, could it be psychological?

DEAR READER—The amounts you are taking cannot be harmful to you. The excess that your body doesn't need is simply eliminated and not stored. They might not do you any good either.

The extra vitamin B-12 and thiamine in the yeast will only help you if you were low on these substances. With a normal hemoglobin I doubt that you had any significant deficiency in B-12. Some people do not eat properly balanced diet and are low on thiamine. You could probably have done the same thing with an improvement in your diet if you really had a deficient intake of thiamine.

You are pretty smart. Most people who feel better are sure it is the effect of the medicine. The simple truth is that people often feel better when they do something for themselves or their doctors give them something, whether or not that something has any real action on the body. It can be the psychological benefits of doing something. This has a lot to do with that old-fashioned human commodity called "faith," whether it is faith in a medicine, a procedure, or a doctor. Never underestimate its importance.

THE LIGHTER SIDE

The mystery adviser strikes again

By DICK WEST

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Let's play a game of "Who Said?"

Who said: "Mr. President, the CIA has a well-trained invasion force in Central America. If you will give us the go-ahead, we will land in Cuba at the Bay of Pigs and you will get credit for overthrowing the Castro regime?"

Who said: "Mr. President, the Viet Cong is about to overrun South Vietnam. However, if we escalate the war by sending in American troops, we can quickly turn them back and you will get credit for saving Southwest Asia from the Communists?"

Who said: "Mr. President, some of our boys got caught trying to bug the Democratic National Committee last night. But if we play it close to the vest, nobody will find out that some of your top aides were involved and it will soon blow over?"

And who said: "Mr. President, Congress and the American people are afraid Nixon might be prosecuted. If you grant him a full pardon right away, it will greatly increase your popularity and get your administration off to a good start?"

Give up? I don't know who said those things either, but whoever it was apparently is now in charge of drawing up economic game plans.

"Mr. President," the mystery adviser said last October, "the No. 1 enemy is inflation. If you propose a 5 per cent surtax, you will put Congress on the spot. If they approve the tax benefits before election, you will get credit for putting the lid on inflation. If they don't approve it, you can make it into a campaign issue."

"Either way, it will help the Republicans regain control of Congress."

Shortly after the election, the mystery adviser disappeared for awhile. But with the opening of the new Congress in January, he suddenly turned up on Capitol Hill.

"Gentlemen," he told the leadership conference, "President Ford has proposed a one-shot income tax rebate of up to $1,000 as an anti-recession move."

"This shows how badly he has misread the mood of the country."

"The people at this time are dead set against any part of government action to stimulate the economy, particularly a tax cut."

"They favor a wait-and-see policy that will let things run on the way they are at least until summer."

"That will give you plenty of time to draw up 335 different anti-recession programs of your own — one for each member of Congress."

Where will the mystery adviser strike next? I don't wish to alarm you but I have heard rumors he is angling to go along on Secretary of State Kissinger's next trip to the Middle East.

'Rumpelstiltskin'

Julian plays at Pomona

By JOSEPH H. FIRMAN

Ancient Holmes Hall at Pomona College resounded Friday afternoon to a cacophony unusual to that venerable auditorium—the "oohs" and "ahs" and merry laughter of a meppet audience watching "Rumpelstiltskin" and the Magic Eye," presented by the Julian Theater of San Francisco.

On a bare stage, before Timothy Duddy's small set, as colorful and ingenious as a finger painting, the youthful cast flicked through a revised rendition of the German fairy tale in a funny, musical performance that was enchanting—literally and figuratively.

The play was directed with impish insouciance by Brenda Reineccius, who also played Sybil Witch, sister to Alma Becker's Willa Witch, a pair of supernatural dingalings who spent a lot of time saving "Double, double, toil and trouble" over a bucket of dry ice.

Richard Reineccius was a satisfyingly menacing and melodramatic Rumpelstiltskin, greeted by a chorus of bubble gum boos whenever he appeared. Comic honors of the afternoon went to Diane Racine, a hilarious Prime Minister, bubbling with malapropisms and handling pratfalls and slapstick with high quality low comedy.

Anne Russell was a wistfully charming Julianna, trying to guess Rumpelstiltskin's name, and Millicent Thomas was a sympathetic Mother. Their duet, "There Is No Gold," was delightful. Lester Jones offered a lithe, robust and comical King Romag.

The performance was accompanied by a soft trio of Phil Serrano, Lewis Brown and Ed Weingold, giving tasteful, imaginative support.

The score by Don Santina included a raucous "My Name Is Rumpelstiltskin"; a plaintive quartet, "The King Is Sad Today," and the triumphant finale, "Goodbye, Goodbye, Rumpelstiltskin!" Regina Cate's costumes were colorful and spritely.

The Julian Theater is made up of actors, dancers, teachers and artists who stage their productions in schools, libraries, parks and theaters of the Bay City and its environs. This was its first trip to Southern California—and it was a trip! Let's hope it won't be the last.

NICE DATE—Baritone Gene Brundage of North Hollywood partners lyric soprano Polly Wood of Encino as romantic leads in the musical extravaganza, "Arabian Nights Pageant," at the National Date Festival in Indio Feb. 14-23. The program is staged nightly.

Friends of Pilgrim Place to see old Oriental art

James P. Todd, who recently presented 65 ancient Chinese bronzes to Pilgrim Place in Claremont, will speak on the collection at a meeting of the Friends of Pilgrim Place at 2 p.m. Wednesday.

The meeting in Decker Hall is open to the public.

Todd will tell the story behind the collecting of the bronzes he gave to the Permanent Art Collection at Pilgrim Place. He feels that the mirrors, vases and other art objects, some of them dating from early Chinese dynasties 3,000 or more years ago, make a valuable contribution to the history of mankind. His father, the late O.J. Todd, was one of the largest collectors of this art during his many years as a civil engineer in China. His mother, Lois Pendleton Todd, was a missionary doctor and was known to many Pilgrim Place residents who served in China.

The eighth annual International Arts program will be held at Pilgrim Place May 3 and 4, its topic "The Arts of the Pacific Area." Residents will be introduced who have served in Hawaii, New Zealand, Australia, Malaysia, The Micronesia and among the aboriginals of Taiwan.

CHARLTON HESTON plays the title role in the Center Theater Group production of Shakespeare's "Macbeth" at the Ahmanson Theater of the Los Angeles Music Center through March 8. Vanessa Redgrave is Lady Macbeth.

ACT scheduled for show at Hartford

The American Conservatory Theater (ACT) of San Francisco, which appeared on the Claremont Colleges' campus for a week last spring, will present the British mystery spoof, "Something's Afoot," in the Huntington Hartford Theater, Hollywood, Feb. 19-March 16.

Low-priced preview performances on the evening of Feb. 18 and at a matinee Feb. 19 will precede the opening.

The play, set in 1935, offers a menagerie of zany characters who sing and dance their way through a host of murders in an old English mansion, complete with trap doors and deadly devices. The butler announces dinner and the fact that the host has just been shot, and is promptly disposed of.

The cast includes Gary Beach, Willard Beckham, Douglas Broyles, Darryl Ferreira, Gary Gage, Barbara Heuman, Lu Leonard, Pamela Myers, Jack Schmidt and Liz Sheridan as the various stereotyped guests and servants at the gloomy estate.

Book, lyrics and music are by James McDonald, David Vos and Robert Gerlach, and additional music and musical consultation by Ed Linderman. The comic parody features costumes by Walter Watson, scenic design by Richard Seger and lighting by Fred Kopp. John Price is musical director, with an orchestra including Larry Epstein, Charles Peterson and John Rae.

The performance schedule for "Something's Afoot" is Tuesday through Saturday at 8:30 p.m. Sunday at 7:30 p.m. and Wednesday and Saturday at 2:30 p.m. Tickets are on sale at the box office, agencies and Wallich's Music City stores.

JIM DOTSON

Pomona unit to perform at city hall

The Pomona Community Chorus, directed by Ray Woods, will salute Black History Week with a concert of spirituals in the council chambers of the Pomona City Hall at 7:30 p.m. Sunday. Admission is free.

Jim Dotson of Pomona is in his second term as president of the chorus. The Dotsons are active members of the White Avenue Baptist Church.

The chorus, now in its third season, is a non-profit organization sponsored by the adult educational program of the Pomona Unified School District. The group of mixed voices has a repertoire ranging from Bach to contemporary, from spirituals and folk songs to Broadway show tunes.

The chorus has performed widely throughout Southern California, including appearances at the Riverside and Downey choral festivals.

Singers who would like to join the chorus are invited to attend rehearsals at Garey High School at 7 p.m. each Monday. Further information can be obtained at 933-5263.

Damien will stay in SAL for a while

It must feel nice to be wanted. Damien High is wanted, and apparently the Spartans feel good about it.

You see, a proposal came up at a recent CIF meeting to segregate the private schools from the public schools, and the San Antonio League asked the CIF officials to reconsider.

Many public school officials have aired complaints about private school domination in the post-season playoffs, and that's what prompted the proposals.

A special CIF committee, consisting of public and private school administrators, was formed to analyze the playoffs format. The committee couldn't come up with a solid agreement, so it set up two proposals which were discussed at the recent meeting.

One proposal was to create separate playoffs for public and private schools, and the other was to leave the playoff format as is.

Fortunately, by a 32-15 vote, the proposal for leaving the playoff format as is was accepted.

If the first plan had been accepted by the council, private schools would no longer be able to compete against public schools for the overall CIF title.

The fact that the playoff format remained unchanged isn't the interesting part of the story. The San Antonio League's actions toward the proposal is what makes the tale interesting.

"Lewis Manville, the league representative, brought the proposal at a league meeting," noted Damien athletic director Tom Carroll. "What made me feel good was that the league didn't settle for just a vote. It wrote a letter supporting the case for Damien."

Turned around

"There was apparently some apprehension when Damien first entered the SAL," he added, "but it looks like it has turned completely around."

The apprehension from the public schools is what almost every private school must confront.

The problem is, if there is a problem, that private schools can draw students from outside of its so-called district. Public schools can only enroll students who reside within certain boundaries.

Therefore, it is feared by the public schools that some of the private establishments might go out and recruit top-notch athletes from anywhere. With the private schools doing so well in interscholastic competition, you can see how some people would take it.

"It's the same story year in and year out," stated Carroll. "Just because we're not limited to one district, some think we have an advantage. Now I'm not saying this is an athletic director or a school representative, it's just my personal experience."

"This is my 21st year in the Catholic school system," he added, "and I've realized that some basic complaints are well-founded, but a lot of it is hearsay."

Carroll was quick to point out that Damien has tried hard to be cooperative with the rest of the league. "We're here to deal with kids," he commented. "We don't go out of our way to get any certain kids. In fact, we had a pretty good athlete who wanted to transfer from one of the league schools to Damien and we turned him away. There's definite concern at Damien to take care of ourselves. I think we've done a pretty good job so far."

There's no wonder SAL formed a campaign to keep Damien in the league.

"We like the people we're competing with," Carroll admitted. "We think it's a very good league."

The fear, when Damien first entered the league, that the Spartans would dominate the SAL has obviously been squelched.

"We don't think we'll create a St. Paul dynasty and rule the roost," the Damien A.D. pointed out. "But I think we are very competitive in the league. About the only sport we're 'down' in is track, and we're working on that."

There's one word that can sum up Damien's success in gaining respect in the SAL.

Cooperation.

New administrative assistant

Ray Plutko of Notre Dame High in Riverside and a former Chino resident, was confirmed recently by the CIF-Southern Section Council as administrative assistant.

Plutko, who leaves his duties as assistant principal, athletic director, and head varsity basketball coach at Notre Dame, assumed his new position at the beginning of this month.

Ray, a former Mt. San Antonio College and Upland College athlete, is replacing Tom Bynne, who in turn is replacing retiring Ken Fagans as commissioner.

Gary Groh earns spot on tour

Palmer falls short in Hawaii

HONOLULU (UPI) — Gary Groh, $40,000 richer and assured of a year's place on the pro tour, headed for Palm Springs today after winning the rain-delayed Hawaiian Open in an upset one-stroke victory.

The win was the first for the 30-year-old Michigan State dropout, who plays out of taxless Freeport in the Grand Bahamas. He stitched together two back-to-back 68s, a 70 and a 68 on the final round for his one-stroke win over Al Geiberger, who lead the tournament for the first two rounds. Californian Geiberger dropped back after shooting a 71 Sunday, but then charged the last nine to finish with a 69-275 with $25,080.

Arnold Palmer, who gave his "Army" hope by starting the final round one stroke behind leader Forrest Fezler, had trouble on the back nine and ended up with a 71. This, coupled with his 69-67-69 gave him a 276 valued at $15,020.

Defending champion Jack Nicklaus had to be content with $3,300 prize money for his 281. Nicklaus started off with a 68, but had wind trouble the second day and shot a 74. He finished with a 70-69.

Groh made news during the first round when he "blackened out" on the 12th hole by taking a nonchalant, casual swing at the ball as it lay poised on the edge of the hole.

"I guess I just blacked out," he said. "I just walked up to the ball and took an absentminded swing at it. I know one thing for certain—I missed it."

But Groh, whose father gave him his first club when he was eight, said the thought of that one missed putt never bothered him during the rest of the tournament.

"I settled down today," he said in describing his win, "and got only one bogey. I hit good drives all week but I was tired playing every day and was glad for the rain-postponed day off on Saturday."

Groh said he spent the day at the beach and credited the warm Pacific waters and relaxing sand for the renewed strength he needed to win.

Groh said he didn't feel too much pressure and wasn't nervous. "I felt pretty good when we teed off," he said, "and I thought I was behind or tied at the 17th as I looked at the score board and saw Al Geiberger was 14 under. I didn't know at that time that he had bogeyed the 15th."

The rains which forced a day's postponement Saturday cleared off for the final round, which was shot in hot, humid weather. It was the first time that the Hawaiian had been forced to cancel a day's play because of weather. A torrential downpour Sunday also delayed the proceedings for 37 minutes.

Palmer says poor putting was downfall

HONOLULU (UPI) — As it has done hundreds of times, yea thousands of times before, the white golf ball headed steady and true for the cup, dipped in, and then suddenly resurfaced to dribble across the green.

An entranced Arnold Palmer watched it, gulped, and shook his head at the teasing mood of the fates in the $220,000 Hawaiian Open. He acknowledged at the end of the tournament that the two in and outer Monday on the 8th and 14th greens at Waialae probably cost him the difference between the $44,000 first prize and his third place check of $15,620.

The red-tied and bronzed 45-year-old golfing idol to millions shrugged it all off with the explanation that he had played as well as he had in the past two or three years, but just couldn't seem to pull it all together.

"I was putting well and wasn't missing many greens," he said, "and, hell, I was getting closer to the pin today but still the end story was the putts I missed."

The near-sighted Palmer, who alternates between contacts and glasses, said he felt he could win the tournament after birdieing the 16th hole, and he had every reason to think so.

He had shot a 69 on the rainy opening day, had fought the high winds Friday for a 67, and ended up one stroke behind the third round leader Forrest Fezler.

He birdied the first hole under the brilliant, hot sun and went into a temporary lead of 12 under, tied with Al Geiberger and Lou Graham, but then he bogied the par three 17th which put him out of the chase.

"I pulled my shot at the 17th," he said. "I was going right at the hole, for there was no point in fooling around. I felt pretty confident, but I got a little quick and pulled it to the left but it still wasn't bad."

Affable Arnie reckoned that if anything else hurt him today it was the few greens he missed.

"I bogeyed four of the five I missed," he said.

But even with today's near miss, it adds up to the news that Arnie is back, which is what his million-fold army has wanted to hear.

"I'm going to play more golf this year," he said, "and my game is better and I'm encouraged. I'm tired now, but I'll be ready Wednesday."

Palmer, whose last victory came at the Bob Hope Desert Classic in 1973, denied that he had gone into any kind of training for this year's tour.

"Last year I let my mind and my game wander," he said, "but I've been playing more winter golf, and whether it turns out good or bad, I'm going to concentrate on my golf this year."

Besides Czarnecki, forward Cliff Manning is averaging 14.0 in league to place him 10th on the Hacienda scoring list, center Jay Wetzel is averaging 13.5, and guard Kelly Bowlin is contributing an average of 10.9 points an outing.

Guard Tommy Thompson, who only averages 4.1 points per game but has proven to be deadly accurate from the floor, set a CIF record over the weekend with 12 assists against Gladstone.

That put him over the top, and he now holds the CIF record for most assists in one season at 235. He set an assist record for one game when he recorded 18 against Miraleste in a tournament outing.

Bruhs, leading the league with an incredible 24.1 league average, has been slightly injured for the past few games but still has scored 83 points his last three times out.

With teammate H.P. Drake injured and shooting at a poor percentage, Bonita center Sly has picked up the slack. After being tied with Drake for

VOTED INTO HALL OF FAME

A beaming Earl Averill accepts announcement of his elevation into baseball's Hall of Fame at his home in Snohomish, Wash.

Averill family enjoys big day

By DON BRADLEY
P-B Staff Writer

"It's been quite a day." That was the reaction Monday of Earl Averill of Alta Loma to the news that his father, Earl Averill of Snohomish, Wash., had been voted into the Baseball Hall of Fame.

"I tried for four hours to reach dad," revealed the younger Averill. "But he was busy talking with New York, Cleveland, Youngstown, and everybody across the country. I finally got him about 2 p.m. He could hardly speak he was so excited."

Although both the Averills are named Earl, they are not senior and junior. The elder Averill, known as "The Earl of Snohomish," is actually Howard Earl Averill. Now 71, he had a brilliant career with the Cleveland Indians.

The younger Averill is Earl Douglas Averill. He was a major league baseball player with several clubs in both the American and National leagues. Earl Douglas was one of the original California Angels and holds the distinction of hitting the first home run at "home" for the Halos in their initial season on April 27, 1961 at Los Angeles' old Wrigley Field. He is now a development director at Claremont Men's College.

"I told dad I wanted to go back to Copperstown, N.Y. with him for the induction ceremonies, August 18," said the younger Averill. "A lot of people worked awfully hard for this. We're all so happy it happened while he was still alive and able to enjoy it. It's really too bad when it happens after a person has died."

Last year the elder Averill missed election to the Hall of Fame by just one vote. His son revealed that a procedural oddity kept his father out.

"Joe Cronin (former American League President) was committed to vote for dad," Averill said. "But he was ill and couldn't attend that day. There is no provision for absentee or delayed balloting and so Cronin couldn't vote and dad lost out by one vote. But this year he was pretty optimistic."

The younger Averill like many former players, is not entirely happy with yearly results of the Hall of Fame voting.

"If they were elected only on their merit, it would be great," he said. "Have the committees or writers examine the records of the nominees or those eligible and vote strictly on what the player has done. If they could take the politics out of it, it would be great. Then, too, there are always certain favorites. But I don't know how you could remove the human element."

Averill particularly mentioned the fact that Whitely Ford was elected to the hall, but Robin Roberts was not.

"Ford was lucky enough to be with the Yankees, a team that won the pennant every year," he said. "Roberts was not. But it wasn't his fault. He and Don Newcombe probably faced each other 10 times. Each would probably have won 20 more games except for that."

"How do you explain Monte Irvin?" he continued. "Irvin worked in the Commissioner's office. If that wasn't politics what was it?"

A check of the statistics show Irvin played in the major leagues eight years (1949-1956). His lifetime totals show a batting average of .293 with 90 home runs, 166 runs scored and 441 runs batted in.

Dodgers sign Lopes, Crawford

LOS ANGELES — Two key members of the Los Angeles Dodgers, second baseman Davey Lopes and outfielder Willie Crawford, have signed their contracts for the 1975 season. Dodgers Vice President Al Campanis announced.

Lopes and Crawford will be among the Dodger's taking part in the team's free public workout and five-inning game with NCAA champion USC on Sunday, Feb. 16.

Lopes batted 266 in 145 games for the Dodgers last season and led the team in stolen bases with 39.

Crawford batted .295 for the second consecutive season and he had 11 home runs and 61 runs batted in. At the age of 28, Willie is the senior citizen of the Dodger batters in terms of consecutive years of service.

UCLA tackles Oregon schools

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — A year ago, UCLA's Bruins went north and suffered back-to-back losses to Oregon State (61-57) and to Oregon (56-51).

The Oregon State defeat ended UCLA's Pacific-8 record winning streak at 50 games.

UCLA is at Corvallis, Ore., and Eugene, Ore., again this weekend and the Bruins' Friday night meeting with Oregon State will be for undisputed possession of first place in the Pac-8 race. The Bruins are at Oregon Saturday night.

"I don't think what happened last year in Oregon will have any bearing on this year," UCLA's John Wooden told the Southern California Basketball Writers Monday.

"This is an entirely different team. Our players are realistic enough to know that anything can happen in our conference this year. Any team can beat any other team. I've said that all along."

"The conference is close this year that the home team should have a definite edge. We'll have to be at our best to come out with two victories this weekend."

UCLA moved into a first-place tie with Oregon State at 4-1 with an exciting 80-84 win over University of Southern California at Pauley Pavilion Saturday night.

"I think that was one of the finer ball games we've had in our series with USC," Wooden said. "It was a game that's very good for intercollegiate basketball."

"But we have no time to think about the past. We have to get ready for our trip to Oregon. Oregon and Oregon State are both very good and it's going to be very, very difficult up there."

"Even though Oregon State is tied for the lead in the conference, I'm not sure they're better than Oregon."

USC is tied for third place in the Pac-8 at 3-2 with Oregon and Stanford.

The Trojans' Bob Boyd said his club still has a good shot at dethroning UCLA, which has won eight league titles in a row.

"I'm disappointed we lost Saturday night but I don't think the conference was lost at this game," he remarked. "To win at home is absolutely vital and we haven't lost at home yet."

"We have nine games remaining and I think our performance at UCLA would win most of them."

USC is at Oregon and Oregon State Friday and Saturday nights, respectively.

"We're capable of winning two on the road but doing it would be a great feat because of the closeness of our league. But we're going up there with that thought in mind."

"It should be our toughest weekend of the season, though, because we're playing two games against two very strong opponents back-to-back at their home courts."

Despite the UCLA defeat, Boyd was at his affable best and showed he hadn't lost his sense of humor.

"I went to Santa Anita Sunday and lost two photos," he told the writers. "Some wise guy told me I couldn't win the close ones there either. Someone else said I should bet to place."

Selected as the university and college division players of the week were Luther Philyaw of Loyola of Los Angeles and Barry Patterson of Cal State Dominguez.

Trojans lose Greg White

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Greg White, a 6-8 sophomore from Los Angeles, will miss the remainder of the basketball season because of a broken right foot, University of Southern California coach Bob Boyd said Monday.

White, the Trojans' sixth man, was averaging 6.4 points in 16 games.

He apparently suffered the injury in practice before Saturday night's UCLA game, an 80-84 USC setback, but played in the contest.

X-rays taken Sunday revealed the fracture and his foot was placed in a cast.

Walnut can increase its H.L. lead

By KEVIN CLOE
P-B Staff Writer

Holding down a two-game lead in the Hacienda League basketball race doesn't seem to be enough for Walnut High.

The Mustangs, fourth-ranked in the CIF 2-A division going into this week of action, could extend the cushion between them and second place to three games Wednesday afternoon.

Coach Bill Murray's defending Hacienda League champions (8-0) will visit Alta Loma High at 3:15 p.m. The Braves, currently all alone in second place in the standings with a 6-2 record, are two games behind unbeaten Walnut and one game ahead of third-place Bonita (5-3).

Another Walnut triumph could very easily send the league race back into a dogfight for second place. Bonita, which has suffered two losses to Alta Loma this season, will be visiting lowly Ontario. The Bearcats should be favored, and need a victory very badly. They still have to face Walnut before the regular season is over.

In other Hacienda League play Wednesday afternoon, San Dimas visits winless Royal Oak, and Sierra Vista hosts Gladstone. All games are set for 3:15 p.m.

Walnut really didn't have much trouble with Alta Loma in the first round. Although the Mustangs could only manage a 27-27 tie after the first half, they blew the game open with strong third and fourth periods to win handily, 69-37.

Forward Ken Czarnecki, the Mustangs' leading scorer, had 34 markers in that one. He's now averaging 16.8 points in league competition, which places him fifth in the Hacienda scoring derby behind San Dimas' Steve Bruhs, Bonita's Steve Sly and Harold Drake, and Royal Oak's Scott Woodland.

Probably one of Walnut's strongest points is its balanced scoring attack. Four of the five Mustang starters are averaging in double figures, with the fifth holding a CIF record in assists.

second place in the league scoring race last week, Steve has now pulled ahead and is averaging 18.9 points. Drake is third on the list with an 18.3 average.

Chatley High, really struggling in Citrus Belt League play, will try and get some sort of win streak going and at the same time jumble up the league standings a little tonight.

The Tigers (3-5) are sitting in fifth place in the six-team league, and will host co-leading Fontana at 7:30 p.m.

In its first-round game with the Steelers, Chaffey dropped an 80-72 decision. The Tigers defeated San Geronimo, 53-45, in a rescheduled game last Sunday.

In other high school action tonight, American Christian hosts Ambassador (8 p.m.) and Western Christian visits Heritage (7 p.m.) in Academy League play. La Verne Lutheran greets Notre Dame of Riverside (8 p.m.) in an Arrowhead League encounter, and Ontario Christian will welcome Brethren in Olympic League play (8 p.m.).

Indiana wins big

Tennessee checks on cager's grades

By United Press International

Bernard King, one of the finest freshmen basketball players in the nation, may be the key to a new recruiting scandal.

King, the 6-foot-6 Tennessee star from Brooklyn, N.Y., who was leading the Southeastern Conference in scoring with a 27.9 average and ranked among the league's top rebounders, was suspended indefinitely by the university Monday pending an investigation of possible changes in his grades in junior high school.

The Vols told King's absence Monday night when Auburn rallied in the closing seconds to beat Tennessee 62-59 and drop the Vols to a 13-4 mark.

Athletic Director Bob Woodruff said Monday that King would be withheld from action until the matter could be resolved.

"The University of Tennessee has received a revised transcript from Fort Hamilton High School reflecting new information for junior high school grades earned by Bernard King, recorded on the permanent record of the high school," said Woodruff in a prepared statement.

"On the basis of the revised transcript, we are withholding King from competition pending further review by university officials and appropriate due process in regard to his eligibility.

"The transcript received today (Monday) differs from previous transcripts provided to the university by Fort Hamilton, including one issued on Jan. 3 to two university officials who visited Fort Hamilton to verify all grades. The latest transcript shows discrepancies between some grades earned in junior high and recorded on the permanent record at Fort Hamilton."

There had been questions about King's eligibility raised and the NCAA requested information on his high school record. King's 15-year-old brother, Al, also currently is starring at Fort Hamilton.

Junior Dan Cox, who had played only seven minutes all season, scored six straight points in the last 22 seconds to lead Auburn past Tennessee. Cox had played in only two other games this season but he scored 14 points Monday night. He put Auburn, now 15-4, ahead 60-57 and the victory was clinched when Glen Moon hit two free throws with eight seconds left.

Pittsburgh is trying to rescue NHL club

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — The city's business community has been asked to help the financially troubled Pittsburgh Penguins by buying up $4,842 unsold seats for the National Hockey League club's 14 remaining regular-season games at the Civic Arena.

Representatives of 30 city

Ernie Grunfield, another New Yorker recruited by Tennessee, scored 22 points to lead the Vols.

In games involving ranked teams Monday night, No. 1 Indiana crushed Michigan 74-48, No. 6 Alabama stopped Vanderbilt 86-72, No. 7 Kentucky edged Louisiana State 77-76 and No. 11 North Carolina held off Stabhorn South Florida 79-72.

Indiana overcame a slow-down offense from Big Ten rival Michigan to extend the nation's longest winning streak to 24 games, 21 of them this season. Four Hoosiers scored in double figures, led by Bob Wilkerson's 18 and Scott May with 15. Steve Green added 12 and Kent Benson 11. C.J. Kupec led Michigan with 17.

Charles Cleveland led Alabama with 22 points and 6-10 Leon Douglas added 19, all in the second half, as the Tide roared out to an early lead, lost it and then took control in the late stages to down Vanderbilt.

Jack Givens paced a second half Kentucky rally and finished with 14 points to lead the Wildcats, now 16-2, over LSU. Glenn Hansen of LSU was the game's high scorer with 28 points while Kentucky's Kevin Grevey and Jimmy Dan Conner had 17 each.

Brad Hoffman, Walter Davis and Mitch Kupchak combined for 31 points as North Carolina held off a late rally by South Florida to win. Hoffman led the scoring with 18 points, followed by Davis with 17. Kupchak, expected to be sidelined because of a back ailment, added 16 and a game-high 13 rebounds.

In another off-the-court development affecting a club, Morgan State, the defending NCAA small college champion, forfeited a second basketball game in less than a week in protest over the suspension of the team's coach.

The team declined to appear for the game with Delaware State in protest of the suspension of Coach Nathaniel Frazier for arguing with a referee. Delaware State team received the tipoff and was declared a 2-0 winner.

Elsewhere, Mississippi defeated Georgia 93-87, Furman edged Jacksonville 92-90, George Washington beat Virginia Military 90-79, Purdue crushed Iowa 107-72, Minnesota defeated Illinois 56-50 and Michigan State ripped Ohio State 101-83.

businesses who met with Mayor Peter Flaherty and Penguins owner Tad Potter in the mayor's office Monday were told the "situation with the Penguins is critical."

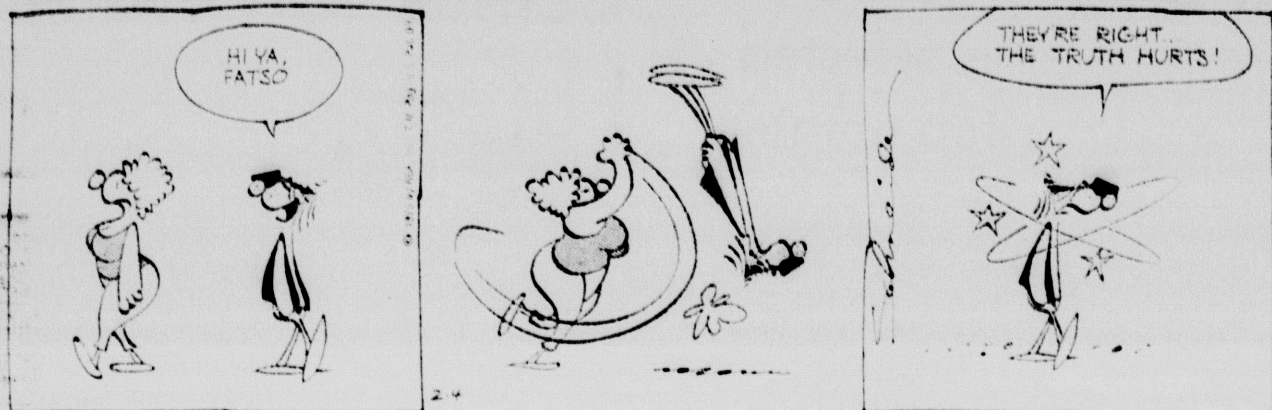

During a weekend meeting in New York, the NHL board of governors indicated the Penguins would remain in Pittsburgh next season.

JOHNNY WONDER

If you own a canary or live on a farm where chickens are raised, you may already know that birds have a very strange way of chewing their food.

Birds must swallow their food whole because they have no teeth. Instead, the work of "chewing" is done by the gizzard, a special, muscular part of a bird's stomach that grinds the food up.

Canaries and other birds that eat seeds and other hard food swallow small stones and grit along with the food. This aids the grinding process and helps the bird digest the food.

It is sometimes easy to tell the kind of food a bird eats by the shape of its bill.

Finches and sparrows have short, strong bills for cracking the hard shells of seeds.

The long, spearlike bill of the heron and stork is ideal for jabbing fish and frogs.

And a hawk has a sharp, hooked bill good for tearing apart the animals it catches for food.

A pocket radio, camera, World Almanac globe or other fine prize will be awarded to the first youngster sending in a question used here. Send your question and your age to Johnny Wonder, 1010 this newspaper, Box 1335 (DA), Santa Cruz, CA 95064.

SAME CHORE — Byron Wright, who keeps things tidy at Sotheby Parke Bernet auctioneers, works around a very life-like sculpture of a lady engaged in the same sort of chore at the Los Angeles gallery.

The sculpture, titled "Woman With Vacuum Cleaner," by Duane Hansen, is expected to bring about $10,000 when it and other pieces of art are offered at auction which ends today. A $2 million gross is expected.

U.S. conservatives may 'go it alone'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — American conservatives, convinced that they are being shortchanged by the major political parties, gather in Washington next month to consider going into business for themselves.

The American Conservative Union and the Young Americans for Freedom are sponsoring a political action conference Feb. 13-16 to vent their unhappiness with the major parties and discuss the possibility of forming a national Conservative political party.

The idea is not new, but like discussions of realigning the Democrats and Republicans into ideologically pure parties of the right and left, nothing much has come of it. Switching political parties is no problem for ordinary citizens, but most politicians seem to regard it on the same level, or worse, than wife-swapping.

Smart conservatives in both major parties know this, but there still is renewed interest in the idea of setting up a third party on the right. There are several reasons for this, not the least of which is the feeling of both Republican and Democratic conservatives that their parties have been taken over by liberals.

Ford' policies termed boost to food prices

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — President Ford's energy policies if implemented would raise food prices by 2 per cent, a spokesman for the nation's foodchains said Thursday.

Clarence Adamy, president of the National Association of Food Chains, said the food production and distribution system uses about 11 per cent of the nation's energy.

Increases in fuel costs, he said, would automatically be reflected at the checkout stand.

Adamy's group, comprised of 200 corporate food chains, was meeting here as part of a nationwide tour to convince consumers that a worldwide grain shortage is the basic cause of rising food prices — not grocers. Supermarkets averaged just one-half cent in profit last year for each dollar in sales, he said.

Royal fish

Sturgeon, whose roe, or eggs, is washed and salted to make caviar, has been considered a royal fish since ancient times. In Roman days, it was bedecked with flowers and borne to the emperor's tables in grandeur. A law enacted in the reign of King Edward II made any sturgeon caught in England the property of the king.

Democrats on the right have been disappointed by their failure to gain party control after the liberal wing led it to disaster in 1972 and GOP conservatives feel they were betrayed by Richard Nixon and disrespected by Gerald Ford, especially in his selection of Nelson A. Rockefeller to be vice president.

But what really intrigues many conservatives is the results of recent national public opinion polls showing that a majority of Americans identify themselves as conservatives.

Writing in the YAF magazine New Guard, both Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., and Lee Edwards, a former aide of Sen. Barry Goldwater, note that the Gallup Poll found last year that Americans chose a conservative rather than liberal label for themselves by 36 to 26 per cent. And, when the 36 per cent undecided group was asked a second time to choose, the conservative plurality rose to a 39 per cent majority.

Helms says he believes "the people, if enough of us work hard enough, will choose a conservative party," and Edwards, while rating the chances of establishing a successful third party as "improbable," does see the possibility of creating a conservative political force that could influence the existing parties.

The possible catch in this is that the same poll results that give Helms, Edwards and other conservatives hope for a new day are not new. Public opinion analysts have been getting similar conservative readings for years on broad questions of ideology, but at the same time getting liberal answers when specific problems of domestic and foreign policy are raised.

Albert Cantrill and Charles Roll Jr., in their 1971 book, "The Hopes and Fears of the American People," discussed this "contradiction."

"American public opinion often operates on two levels simultaneously, and frequently in a rather schizophrenic fashion," they said. They cited a study by the Institute for International Social Research which "showed that the American public generally demonstrates basic conservatism when confronted with an ideological issue but at the same time responds more liberally when confronted with an operational issue."

The institute found, for example, that while a majority of the public agreed that "the federal government is interfering too much in state and local matters," when the questions got down to specifics such as school aid and compulsory medical insurance, "the public was overwhelmingly 'liberal.'" In favor of an activist federal government.

'Eye in sky' should solve many puzzles

SEATTLE, Wash. (UPI) — Three aerospace companies that have had a key role in America's exploration of space are designing the automated brains and muscles for an orbiting telescope, which would give astronomers a view of the universe 10 times sharper than they get from the ground.

The giant eye in the sky, tentatively scheduled to be launched in the next decade, should help scientists answer some major astronomical puzzles such as the physical nature of pulsars, the structure of comets and the scale and curvature of the universe.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration project is still in the early planning stages and has not yet received a firm go-ahead. But the Space Science Board of the National Research Council recommended in a recent report that the Large Space Telescope be the only new space research mission to be undertaken by NASA in the next fiscal year. The board said the telescope should be followed by a series of permanent national and international orbiting observatories.

Plans call for the LST to be placed in orbit 323 miles high — well above the distorting and blocking effects of earth's murky atmospheric sheath. The scope will weigh 21,000 pounds and its main body will be 41.7 feet long and 13.1 feet wide. Its mirror will be between 6.6 and 9.9 feet in diameter.

The telescope would be carried into orbit by the space shuttle rocket plane now under development. Every 2½ years or so, the shuttle would bring the telescope back to earth for refurbishment and instrument updating. In the meantime, shuttle astronauts would provide periodic maintenance in space.

Three aerospace companies are working on parallel preliminary design work on a support systems module for the big telescope. The module would be the observatory's brains and muscle and would handle power, control, pointing, data handling and communications.

After the studies are completed and examined, NASA plans to solicit industry bids for the detailed design, development, fabrication and test phases of the module as well as for the integration of the module with the optical telescope assembly and the science instruments.

Northrup given $6 million HAWK contract

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Northrop Corporation was awarded a $6 million Army contract Tuesday to provide equipment for the HAWK ground-to-air missile defense system.

The contract brings to more than $82 million the total business the improved HAWK program has brought to Southern California since December 1972.

The missile and its electronic ground equipment are built by Raytheon Company. Northrop's Electro-Mechanical Division in Anaheim, Calif., is prime contractor for the loaders and launchers.
